It is both a pleasure and a privilege to write this, my first letter as president, to the alumni of the University of New Brunswick.

As an alumnus of UNB, I am proud to count myself among your ranks. Like you, UNB had a profound and life-changing impact on me. My time and experiences opened up the world in ways I could not have imagined at the time. It was here that I learned the reward of scholarship, the value of teamwork, and the importance of commitment and persistence.

Those lessons never left me, even as I left UNB and my home in New Brunswick – first to the United States and then to Australia. No matter where I have found myself in this world, I have been grounded and guided by what I first learned right here. Those values have never failed me.

Since taking on the role of president in July, I have had the opportunity to speak with people who share my passion for UNB. This Homecoming was particularly special, as it was my first real chance to connect with so many of our alumni. The conversations I had with you reinforced the importance of our university and the role that we all play in advancing its cause.

We are a diverse community, but we are united in our shared belief in the transformative power of higher education. Of course, our university faces some challenges – but a series of significant opportunities await. We do, however, have a lot to be proud of. Our people make the world around us a better place every day – in classrooms, research labs and in the community. We are a positive force of growth, whether that be economic, cultural or personal. The strength of our alumni family is a testament to the fact that this mindset stays with us long after we leave these campuses. We may be a small university, but the impact of what happens here is felt around the globe. In short, UNB really matters for the world.

That's a good thing, because I firmly believe the world needs more UNB. The time has come for us to be bold – to share our stories proudly and to throw the doors open so that as many students as possible, from as many backgrounds as possible, can experience UNB and share in this opportunity.

UNB has made great strides towards these goals, driven by the entire university family and supported by the stewardship of past presidents such as Dr. Eddy Campbell. I am grateful for that, just as I am mindful that the needs and requirements of the university will evolve in the future. I look forward to working with you to advance the story of UNB and ensure that it continues to be responsive to the changing world we live in – now and for generations to come. At UNB, every future matters.

Proudly UNB,

Paul J. Mazerolle (BA'89)
President and Vice-Chancellor

It's an honour to be writing to you as the new president of the Associated Alumni. I'm looking forward to working with council, our executive director and the dedicated Alumni Office staff to provide valuable programs, events and initiatives for our ever-growing family of 91,000+ UNB alumni around the world.

To say my UNB experience has had an impact on my life would be an understatement. I'm the third generation of my family to have attended our storied institution. My parents met while attending UNB. A world-class education enabled me to launch a career in two professional disciplines. I met my wife, Jessica Stutt (BA'08, MBA'17), through UNB and we were married on the Fredericton campus. As alumni, we're proud to call New Brunswick home.

Many thanks to Jill Jollineau (MED'02) for her tireless work as alumni president over the past two years. Through her passion and leadership, the Associated Alumni has been incredibly well served. She'll continue to add value and insight to our council as past president, as well as to UNB's Board of Governors as alumni representative. On behalf of our Associated Alumni Council, I would also like to wish our executive director, Margaret Grant-McGivney (BScEng'88), great success in her upcoming retirement at the end of this year. Margaret has been a stalwart for the Associated Alumni and we're grateful for her years of dedicated service. The search for a new executive director is underway.

In recent years, the Associated Alumni has streamlined our council through a governance review in order to provide a more effective and nimble structure that will best meet our strategic goals. It so happens that this year there are several new members joining our council. I encourage you to get to know more about all the dynamic people who have volunteered their time and talent as ambassadors for the UNB alumni community. Their bios are on page 35.

It's an exciting time at UNB as we welcome the appointment of our 19th president, Dr. Paul Mazerolle. Dr. Mazerolle is a fellow alumnus of UNB, obtaining his bachelor of arts in sociology in 1989. He has already begun sharing his vision for the future of UNB with colleagues and students on both campuses. Please be sure to read about his inspirational story on page 22. We are eager to collaborate on realizing Dr. Mazerolle's vision, as both the university and the Associated Alumni are in the process of revising our respective strategic plans.

With the help of alumni, friends and readers like you, the association produces two print issues of the Alumni News magazine and three electronic issues of the Alumni News direct newsletter. Alumni News is one of most valuable connections between you and your alma mater. Our office will soon be looking for your feedback and input on the magazine, to ensure it continues to meet the needs of our readers.

During my term, I'm excited to look at new ways our university can further care for future alumni through student mentorship and support, as well as continuing to grow our dynamic U35 young alumni program. I also hope to help foster many new lifelong UNB alumni relationships and to nourish the valued connections we already enjoy. I'm looking forward to meeting alumni like you over the coming years and taking the time to hear your #ProudlyUNB story. Please stay in touch.

Sincerely,

Peter Syroid (BScEng'98, D-TME'98, MBA'03)

NEW RESEARCH CHAIR IN OFF-SITE CONSTRUCTION

David Magee (BSc'82, PhD'87), vice-president research at UNB; Laura Richard (BSc'06), director of research at New Brunswick Innovation Foundation; Hans Klohn (BScEng'76), president of OSCO Construction Group; Zhen Lei, OSCO research chair in off-site construction; Karen Ludwig (MEd'07), member of Parliament for New Brunswick Southwest; and Paul Mazerolle (BA'89), president of UNB.

Current trends in the construction industry reflect the need to adopt technological advances and initiate a transformational shift from conventional on-site construction to a Design for Manufacture and Assembly (DfMA) approach. This approach combines two methodologies that focuses on design, ease of parts manufacturing and efficiency of end-product assembly.

Zhen Lei, UNB's new OSCO research chair in off-site construction and scientific director of the Off-site Construction Research Centre at UNB, will build upon the UNB faculty of engineering's strength in civil engineering and related pre-manufacturing technology that is leading the way to create strong ties between researchers and the construction and manufacturing industry.

"UNB actively pursues strategic partnerships to drive economic growth to build a better future for New Brunswick and Atlantic Canada," says UNB President Paul Mazerolle. "By working with OSCO and other industry partner companies, the Off-site Construction Research Centre, under the direction of Dr. Lei, will help grow skilled expertise and develop innovative solutions for the construction industry."

Lei began his new chair position last April. His main research areas include construction process simulation and optimization, building information modeling and emerging digital technologies, and work process improvement in off-site construction.

"Funding support from OSCO Construction Group and ACOA will allow OCRC to continue to grow our team and build capacity for industry partnerships with academia," says Lei.

"I am excited to build on UNB's leading research capabilities and leverage emerging technologies that are changing construction and manufacturing industries globally."

In addition to his research work, Lei will also be an assistant professor in the department of civil engineering. He received an MSc and a PhD in construction engineering and management from the University of Alberta and worked at PCL Industrial Management Inc. prior to joining the OCRC team at UNB. 🇨🇦

UNB MEN'S HOCKEY COACH IS

Just Getting Started

For 20 years, Gardiner MacDougall, head coach of the UNB Reds men's hockey team, has done his best to develop GRIT (guts, resilience, initiative, tenacity) on the smooth ice of the Aitken University Centre.

His pursuit of passion and perseverance has paid off. Over the past two decades, MacDougall has propelled the UNB Reds to seven national university championships. He is arguably one of the winningest coaches in Canadian university hockey history. He is the all-time Atlantic conference leader in total wins; is in the top five for all-time U SPORTS victories; and is third in all-time Canadian men's university hockey national championships. The Aitken Centre is festooned with banners brought home by the team MacDougall has coached since 1999. But for MacDougall, coaching is about much more than hockey dreams and big wins. "My first teaching job was in the mid-1980s in Norway House, Manitoba," says MacDougall. "I had a picture of Terry Fox on the wall and I'd written across it 'enthusiasm is contagious and catch the fever.' I think that summarizes my goals.

It's to bring positive energy and make a difference with people."

MacDougall has a national reputation as a proven developer of players and teams, and UNB is a major source of hockey talent for the professional ranks, including the NHL. Goalie Rylan Parenteau was at his home in Saskatoon, Sask., in 2017 when he was contacted by the Reds. The two-time Academic All-Canadian knew all about UNB, MacDougall and the Reds. He says that the hallmark of MacDougall's coaching is his unbridled enthusiasm.

"What's his style? He is the most enthusiastic coach I've ever had. He is a great motivator for the players, both in terms of the game and of life. He wants the players to do well in everything. The mental game is as important to him as the physical game. An important word for him is grit and he applies that to life, as well as to the game."

MacDougall has been involved in hockey since he was a kid in Bedeque, PEI. He says he was a rink rat, but even then, he was developing a keen eye for talent on the ice. MacDougall coached and taught physical education out west for 11 years before he got the top job with the Reds. It was one of three offers he was considering at the time, and he knows he ultimately picked the right one in coming to UNB.

"The first interview after I got the job was with (sports reporter) Bill Hunt at The Daily Gleaner, and I said to him, 'This is my NHL' and it is still my NHL," says MacDougall. "The set up at UNB is very professional -- the arena, the university community is highly supportive, both in terms of the administration and the fan base here. I can continue to grow here. I have a terrific coaching staff and we get great people. I have always viewed it as a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and I just continue to extend that lifetime."

So, what about the next 20 years? MacDougall doesn't like to look too far into the future, or at least not beyond the current hockey season and its promise of major victories.

"We came up with a theme -- just getting started," he says. "I think it's a great one for everybody to live by. It doesn't matter what you have done in the past, and you have no control over the future, so it's what you're going to do today that matters. I think we have a special group this year and a special opportunity for our program. Who knows what's ahead this year?"

APPOINTMENTS

ANGÉLIQUE SIMPSON TAKES HELM OF DEVELOPMENT AND DONOR RELATIONS OFFICE

On July 23, Angélique W. Simpson (LLB'08) became UNB's new director of development and donor relations, taking over from Peter Coates (BBA'83), who led UNB's most successful fundraising campaign.

A lawyer, Simpson left private practice 10 years ago to become more involved with projects that strengthen Atlantic Canada. Her first bi-campus leadership role at UNB was as director of international recruitment, a position which she held from 2010 to 2014. Most recently, Simpson held the position of vice-president, newcomer and community connections at the YMCA of Greater Saint John.

Through her various careers, Simpson has shown to be a strong relationship builder and has a proven track record in strategic planning oversight and execution and success in grant writing and fundraising.

LARRY HACHEY RE-APPOINTED AS CHAIR OF UNB'S BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Larry Hachey (BBA'87), a well-known community leader from Quispamsis, NB, has been re-appointed chair of UNB's Board of Governors for an additional two-year term.

Hachey, who is currently the president and CEO of Canlease Inc., an equipment finance company, has served as Board chair since 2017, and has been a member since 2011. In addition to serving on several Board committees, Hachey served as the former president of the UNB Associated Alumni, was named an Ernst & Young Atlantic Canadian Entrepreneur of the Year Award finalist in 2002, won the Saint John Board of Trade Entrepreneurial Award in 2003, and currently serves as chair of the Saint John Airport Inc.

UNB researchers participate in Canada's largest dementia research network

Alison Luke and Shelley Doucet

Four UNB researchers are participating in Canada's largest dementia research network. Chris McGibbon (BScEng'88, PhD'94), Shelley Doucet (BN'05, PhD'10), Alison Luke (BA'92) and Sandra Magalhaes will explore a wide range of topics related to dementia; under three main themes: prevention, treatment and quality of life.

Last June, the Canadian Institutes of Health Research announced the second phase of funding for the Canadian Consortium on Neurodegeneration in Aging (CCNA). The CCNA contains 19 teams of researchers from across the country who are engaged in research on neurodegenerative diseases, such as dementia.

Members of the research teams will test a variety of therapies and lifestyle changes to better understand how dementia could be prevented and managed.

McGibbon, professor of kinesiology at UNB Fredericton, is co-leading one of the teams with Pamela Jarrett (BSc'87), a geriatrician from Horizon Health Network in Saint John and associate professor of medicine at Dalhousie University. This team is working on creating a community-based program for seniors at risk of memory problems that might benefit from various lifestyle interventions.

"Alzheimer's disease and dementia can have significant impacts on individuals," says McGibbon. "While certain risk factors, such as age and genetics, can't be modified, other risk factors, such as inactivity and inadequate nutrition, can."

Objectives for the study are to identify barriers and enablers to participation in future programs; evaluate methods for identifying, recruiting and retaining seniors at risk of Alzheimer's disease and related dementia in a community observational cohort; and identify high risk communities in New Brunswick. Magalhaes, a research associate at UNB Fredericton, and Bryn Robinson (C-FR'02, BA'03, PhD'10) and Linda Yetman from Horizon Health Network in Saint John are also leading parts of the project.

Doucet, associate professor in UNB Saint John's nursing and health sciences program, will serve on research team ROSA (Research on Organization of Healthcare Services for Alzheimers) with Jarrett. This team will investigate how to provide innovative care for persons living with dementia at the primary care level. Luke and Magalhaes, along with Samantha Fowler (BA'15) from Horizon Health Network in Saint John, are also members of the ROSA team.

"Through our study, we hope to be able to engage with communities across New Brunswick," says Doucet. "Our overall goal is to improve the dementia diagnostic process and post-diagnostic support for those affected by this disease." 🌟

ALUMNI INTO ENGINEERING

GURURAJ "DESH" DESHPANDE

Gururaj "Desh" Deshpande (MScEng'75, DSc'01) arrived as a graduate student at UNB in the early 1970s, after completing a bachelor of technology in electrical engineering degree from the Indian Institute of Technology - Madras. He graduated with a master of electrical engineering degree from UNB and went on to complete a PhD in data communications at Queens University.

Deshpande began his career with the Motorola Corporation and then branched out on his own to found or co-found a number of innovative tech companies in the US, with the intention of harnessing the potential of fibre optics. These included Coral Networks, Cascade Communications (a company that played a key role in the infancy of the internet), and Sycamore Networks Inc.

He was also involved either as the founder, a founding investor or chairman of several other companies including Tejas Networks, Cimaron, Webdialogs, Airvana, Sandstone Capital, A123 Systems and Curata. He is currently the president and chairman of Sparta Group LLC and chairman of Tejas Networks.

Deshpande is also a trustee of the Deshpande Foundation, along with his wife Jaishree, a tremendous foundation that works to strengthen ecosystems that create significant social and economic impact through entrepreneurship and innovation.

The Deshpande Foundation has supported the work of hundreds of emerging entrepreneurs through the setup of five other centres around the world, including the Pond-Deshpande Centre at UNB, which focuses on merging technological innovation and social innovation.

He has co-chaired a US national council to support innovation and entrepreneurship strategy, and serves as a life-member of the MIT Corporation; and his support has made possible MIT's Deshpande Center for Technological Innovation.

Deshpande certainly exemplifies what it means to be a successful entrepreneur and philanthropist who knows how to move projects forward, and UNB is proud to induct him into the engineering Wall of Fame.

Gururaj "Desh" Deshpande (MScEng'75, DSc'01)

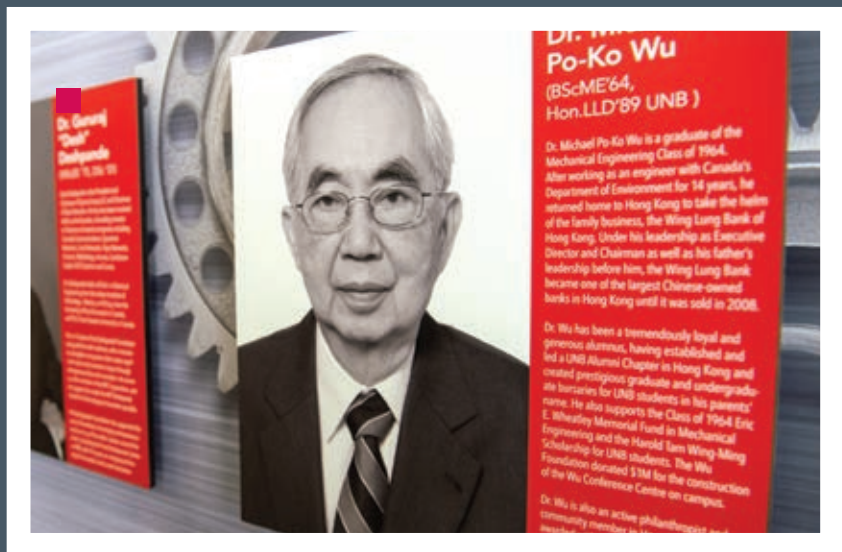

INDUCTED WALL OF FAME

MICHAEL WU

Michael Wu (BScEng'64, LLD'89) was honoured with the UNB Engineering Distinguished Alumni Award in May at a gathering of the alumni chapter in Hong Kong. Along with this award, he was added to the faculty's Wall of Fame.

Wu is a graduate of the mechanical engineering Class of 1964. After working as an engineer with Canada's department of environment for 14 years, he returned home to Hong Kong to take the helm of the family business, the Wing Lung Bank of Hong Kong. Under his leadership as executive director and chairman, as well as his father's leadership before him, the Wing Lung Bank became one of the largest Chinese-owned banks in Hong Kong, until it was sold in 2008.

Wu has been a tremendously loyal and generous alumnus, having established and led a UNB alumni chapter in Hong Kong and created prestigious graduate and undergraduate bursaries for UNB students in his parents' names, Wu Yee-sun and Wu Ho Man-yuen. He also supports the Class of 1964 Eric E. Wheatley Memorial Fund in Mechanical Engineering and the Harold Tam Wing-Ming Scholarship for UNB students. In addition, the Wu Yee-Sun Charitable Foundation donated a leadership gift for the construction of the Wu Conference Centre on the Fredericton campus.

Wu has said that his father, Wu Yee-Sun (DLitt '87), always believed in the importance of education; being the eldest son of a poor family, he had to work from an early age to support the family. After years of hard work, his father founded his own money exchange at the age of 30 and, although he found success as an entrepreneur, he always lamented not being able to further his studies. He therefore wanted his children to have the best opportunities when it came to their education and was always generous when it came to supporting educational endeavours.

After receiving the award, Dr. Wu stated, "I am honoured to have been inducted into the UNB Engineering Wall of Fame. My experience abroad and studying at UNB was invaluable to my professional development as an engineer and subsequently as a banker at Wing Lung Bank. I am very grateful to the University of New Brunswick for the education it has given me and I shall always treasure the time I studied there." 🌟

Defenders of the right whale

WRITER/PHOTOGRAPHER TEAM CALLS ATTENTION TO CRITICALLY ENDANGERED SPECIES

HER NAME WAS PUNCTUATION, NICKNAMED FOR THE APPEARANCE OF SCARS ON HER BODY. SHE'S BIRTHED EIGHT CALVES IN 38 YEARS AND MANY RESEARCHERS KNEW HER ON SIGHT, A NORTH ATLANTIC RIGHT WHALE WHO USED TO SWIM IN THE GULF OF ST. LAWRENCE OFF THE COAST OF QUEBEC'S GASPÉ PENINSULA.

That is, until Punctuation was struck and killed by a ship in summer 2019. Adding to the tragedy, she was one of 10 who died last summer in a species whose population has been decimated to fewer than 400.

Now, two UNB alumni have taken up the charge to raise awareness for Punctuation.

Photojournalist Nick Hawkins (BSc'10) and freelance writer Tom Cheney (BA'10) have had web features in the high-profile Smithsonian and National Geographic, in an effort to sound the alarm. The writer-photographer team are the only non-researchers to hold a 'species at risk' permit from the department of fisheries and oceans that allows them to approach and document the North Atlantic right whale.

Learning about right whales

Both the Smithsonian article, published in October 2018, and the National Geographic article, published in July 2019, help to educate readers on the species and the dangers it faces in its feeding ground of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The biggest risks to the species is being caught in fishing nets and/or struck by ships. After birthing their calves off the coasts of Georgia and Florida, right whales swim north in search of their food source, copepods (a type of zooplankton). Formerly, that feeding ground was in the Bay of Fundy in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, but with climate change, the copepods have moved further north to the busier Gulf of St. Lawrence. After the deaths of 17 right whales in 2017 along the eastern seaboard (12 in Canadian waters and five in US waters), a number twice as high as in the previous five years, governments began to respond, with efforts that include closing some fishing zones, rerouting ships and imposing speed limits. Other strategies include fishing ropes with reduced breaking strength that allow whales to break free, and innovative new ropeless traps (the new style of trap has yet to see widespread adoption).

Further steps were taken this summer after the six new deaths, including widening the slowdown zones to include more areas and vessel classes, and a sevenfold increase in aerial surveillance.

Words and pictures capture a scene

In both articles, Cheney and Hawkins provide readers with a sense of being at the scene. In the first article, Cheney's brings the reader along with him as he describes peering out of a twin otter plan down at a cluster of whales. In the second, he captures scientists in a moment of contemplation after hearing of the passing of yet another whale: "A group of six researchers sits down together on a sandbank, silent and dejected. One researcher sits alone down the beach, her face buried in her palms. The tragedy of 2017 seems to be repeating itself." »

She was one of 10 who died last summer in a species whose population has been decimated to fewer than 400.

Cheney also likes to incorporate scientific research and alert readers to new research being done on the species, for instance by Kim Davies, an assistant professor of biology on UNB's Saint John campus. He says he finds inspiration in their efforts. "The people doing these necropsies were incredibly inspiring in their dedication. They're travelling all over, putting in unbelievably long hours and putting their heart and soul into this work."

Hawkins' photographs are even more visceral, capturing whales at play from different angles: an aerial viewpoint of three whales, a sunset shot of a solitary whale. But while Hawkins set out to capture a species in habitat, he decided not to shy away from the bleak moments. "It was never my intention to photograph dead whales. In fact, we were up in the Gulf of St. Lawrence attempting to make some of the first underwater images of this species when this year's mortalities began," he says. "We temporarily abandoned our efforts and started travelling around to photograph the necropsies."

Inspiration for the future

Like Cheney, Hawkins equally sees the stories as having a positive side because of the researchers. "The visual impact of the images is a way to get people to pay more attention to the issue, but the story that goes with them reveals a passionate group of dedicated individuals who are working to solve this problem. I hope people are alarmed and shocked by what they see, but are also inspired to support those working on the front lines, as well as government policies that protect marine life."

Hawkins says that his own degree in biology inspired him to pick up the camera. "My interest in photography stemmed from a desire to communicate science and share my love for the natural world. During my studies, I had seen that science wasn't being well communicated to the public and I felt that I could contribute through images and stories that spoke to a more general audience," he says.

Cheney is moved to write about the North Atlantic right whale because he sees the problem as very solvable with tailored regulations and restrictions to shipping and fishing practices. He also sees the whales' plight as a microcosm of larger environmental problems. "This could be an analogy for the climate crisis and the human relationship with nature writ large," says Cheney. "These are large, highly intelligent beings and they're dying basically at our hands. If we can't learn enough about them and their habits and form the collective political will to save them from extinction, what's next?"

They're travelling all over, putting in unbelievably long hours and putting their heart and soul into this work.

The visual impact of the images is a way to get people to pay more attention to the issue.

CREATIVE WRITING ALUMNI WIN PRESTIGIOUS INTERNATIONAL LITERARY AWARDS

Emily Ruskovich (MA'09) has won the International Dublin Literary Award, the world's largest literary prize awarded to a single novel, for her debut novel, Idaho. The prize is worth €100,000 (approx. $145,500 CA) and has previously been awarded to such notable writers as Nobel laureate, Orhan Pamuk. Ruskovich's novel was selected from a list of 141 books, which were nominated by libraries in 115 cities from 41 countries. Idaho was nominated by a public library branch in Bruges, Belgium.

On receiving the call that she had won the prestigious prize, Ruskovich told The Guardian, "I didn't speak at first, then I reacted with great joy, but then I also felt really uncertain. I couldn't really believe it had happened. It was just a quiet little moment in the grass with my baby and my life was completely changed."

Idaho, published in 2017 by Random House, tells the haunting and mysterious story of a young couple, Jenny and Wade, who purchase a piece of wooded land in the Northern Idaho mountains. As the years pass, the couple has two children, May and June. Winters in the mountains are isolated, lonely and less than ideal. Then something happens that changes their lives forever.

Ruskovich's short stories have appeared in various publications, including Zoetrope, One Story and the Virginia Quarterly Review. She is also the winner of the 2015 O. Henry Prize and currently teaches creative writing in the master of fine arts programme at Boise State University.

"As a graduate student in creative writing at UNB, I felt like I was part of a very encouraging literary community," said Ruskovich. "What impressed me most was the close attention my work received from my professors who consistently met with me one-on-one to give thorough and honest critiques of my writing. It was an experience I don't think I will have again to quite the same degree. The personal relationships I developed there were inspiring and meaningful."

“As a graduate student in creative writing at UNB, I felt like I was part of a very encouraging literary community.”

“I have little doubt about the impact this award will have on my career as a writer.”

Kwame Dawes (PhD’92) was recognized for his poetry with the Windham Campbell Prize, valued at $165,000 US (approx. $218,000 CA). Dawe’s “visceral, memorable, and urgent lyricism results in a poetry of compassion, moral seriousness, and depth that resonates across continents. He is a daring ventriloquist with a polymathetic intelligence, and his expansive body of work shows lyric mastery, narrative force, and a profound sense of the historical and geographic roots of poetry.” (source: windhamcampbell.org)

On receiving the award, Dawes said that, “it was a surprise to me, and a pleasant one, especially because it honors poetry. It is gratifying because in its short period of existence, the Windham-Campbell Prize has shown itself to be an award that seeks to have international importance, and that celebrates what its judges deem literary excellence. I have little doubt about the impact that this award will have on my career as a writer.”

Born in Ghana and raised in Jamaica, Dawes is the author of 20 books of poetry, including Wisteria and Progeny of Air; and many books of fiction and non-fiction. He is “profoundly influenced by the aesthetic, intellectual, and political traditions of the Afro-Caribbean diaspora.” (source: windhamcampbell.org).

For his works, Dawes has received numerous other awards and accolades, including a Guggenheim Fellowship, the Musgrave Medal, a Pushcart Prize, and the Forward Prize in Poetry.

He is currently a Chancellor’s Professor of English at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Dawes came to UNB in 1987 to pursue his PhD in English after graduating from the University of West Indies in Jamaica and winning a Commonwealth Scholarship to study English in Canada. He says that he was able to advance his work as a creative writer in New Brunswick because of the rich literary tradition at UNB. 🍷

MEET Paul

UNB's new president comes back home to lead his alma mater

He is a born New Brunswicker who grew up on Fredericton's north side, but Paul Mazerolle (BA'89) is bringing a little Aussie influence to his new role as president and vice-chancellor of his alma mater, the University of New Brunswick.

Mazerolle has returned to New Brunswick 30 years after he graduated from UNB with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology, and he has come back with an ambitious vision for the university as a key player in the economic, social and cultural life of the province and of Canada.

"Universities exist to change the world," says Mazerolle. "We need to deliver that social dividend using our knowledge, our research, our ingenuity, and the achievements of our students to make a difference."

He says he is impressed with the changes at UNB since he left New Brunswick, first to study and work in the United States and then to Queensland, Australia, in 2000 where he held various academic, research and administrative positions.

Mazerolle says UNB needs to do more celebrating about the many achievements that have put it on the world stage, and that's where his Australian experience will come in handy.

"We have to tell our story, it's a very positive one," he says. "It's not boasting, but celebrating our great achievements.

As Canadians, we are very humble. We should tell our story loud and proud. I've observed many Australian universities doing that well and we can embrace that approach."

Mazerolle is the 19th UNB president and the fifth alumnus to serve in the role.

Mazerolle has many relatives and friends in New Brunswick, and he says that although he left New Brunswick for a long time, the province never left him.

"This is a special place," he says. "I have a unique and privileged opportunity to come back and try to shape this institution so it continues to deliver for the province and the region in the years to come. That is a great privilege and why I am proudly UNB. This university has a huge impact on the community. Think of the social, economic and cultural impact, and imagine if we didn't exist in Fredericton and Saint John. What would New Brunswick be like? What we deliver for the community is extraordinary and inspiring. UNB has a special responsibility to deliver for the province of New Brunswick."

Mazerolle's experiences as a student at UNB are varied, as he persevered in order to find his passion. He started off in business, followed quickly by physical education, and subsequently ended up in electrical engineering. He remembers fondly hunkering down in the basement of the Harriet Irving Library trying to » figure out graphics. He then turned to science for a year before finally choosing sociology and earning his bachelor of arts degree in 1989.

With that foundation, he turned his attention to criminology, studying the subject in the United States. In Australia, he developed the criminology program at the University of Queensland before taking a leave of absence to head up the research and prevention division of the newly created Queensland Crime and Misconduct Commission which investigates corruption and organized crime in Queensland.

“It was an amazing experience in terms of leadership and engaging with the big challenges in the community and the public sector, be they public sector corruption, police corruption, models of fraud resistance in organizations and crime. It was a very formative experience.”

Following that, he returned to the University of Queensland before being head-hunted for a position at Griffith University, also in Queensland. It wasn't long before Griffith recognized his administrative talents and put him in charge of its centre for ethics, law, justice and governance.

Mazerolle says a liberal arts education holds a central place in the university and in the working world.

“An arts-based education will continue to be in demand, perhaps more so in the future. People who can write, people who can think, problem solve, articulate and communicate - those are valuable skills.”

“I am probably one of the few alumni that have navigated a number of different faculties at UNB. The university enabled me to take some time and find out where my passion laid. So, I graduated with a sociology major and became a criminologist over time, but my experiences in several different areas of study probably made me a better academic in the long run.”

Mazerolle says he is impressed by UNB's alumni community, which he describes as essential and a huge resource.

“Just the number of people who went through this institution in the last 235 years is quite extraordinary, especially in terms of the impact they have had on our community, country and the world. Having that history and that ongoing commitment to excellence and giving back is really strong,” he says.

“So, I am looking forward to working closely with the alumni association, getting to know the different chapters and meeting people across the country and around the world. I think they are part of the composition of the UNB community - they are an essential component.”

Mazerolle knows the university, like all large post-secondary institutions, has its challenges. They include deferred maintenance issues, the ongoing problems of student debt and financing, and providing programs that are relevant in changing times. He also is committed to making the university more inclusive and accessible and increasingly relevant for Indigenous students and Indigenous communities.

“I want a university that is relevant to all, not just some,” he says. “So, the institutional commitment to equity, diversity, inclusion and to First Nations and reconciliation is important, indeed fundamental. The truth and reconciliation process is a real priority for us and we want to lead in that space.”

In terms of programs, Mazerolle is open to new ideas such as micro-credentials, which would allow people who can't devote years to a degree to pick up specific skills through tailored courses.

Mazerolle says he is a builder.

“I want to build UNB both in terms of its student numbers, its faculty, in terms of its physical and electronic assets, in its reach and its impact locally, provincially, regionally, nationally and globally,” he says.

“We need to be examining our programs, how we support people, how we support innovation, how we support students navigating their pathway through university and into the world of work. We also have to examine our campuses in Saint John and Fredericton and ensure that they are vibrant campus communities well placed to deliver for students, faculty and staff and the wider community. We owe that to New Brunswick.” 🙌

“An arts-based education will continue to be in demand, perhaps more so in the future.”

a family affair

ALUMNI FAMILY CARRIES ON EQUESTRIAN TRADITION

For competitors at the Foshay International equestrian event, the sprawling field next to the St. John River is perfect turf for a smooth ride. But to New Brunswick's Stevenson family, it's nothing less than a field of dreams.

Located well off the beaten track in Lower Jemseg, NB, the Foshay International competition has just wrapped up its second annual Labour Day weekend event. Horses, riders and an assortment of jumps still dot the alluvial plain that forms the grand arena and offers the kind of soft yet secure footing horses must dream about.

Bob Stevenson (BBA'66) is clearly pleased as he surveys the scene. It has been a successful weekend – an estimated 3,000 people visited the site; competitors came from the United States and Canada, and a team of more than 100 volunteers – many of them UNB alumni – kept everything running smoothly. The event was supervised by top equestrian officials from across Canada.

“It's run under the auspices of the Fédération Equestre Internationale – this is an FEI event,” says Stevenson. “There are very strict rules and we have to be very attentive to those rules. There is only one other event in Canada that provides the same opportunity for these young riders coming up through the levels and it’s in Bromont, Quebec.

“So Foshay is a qualifying event. It’s a good safe event, as safe as we could make it. The jump builder (Jay Hambly) is on the course building team for the Tokyo Olympics.”

The competition has become an important event for the entire Stevenson family. Bob’s son, Rob (BSc’99) is the driving force behind the development of Foshay. He is a cardiologist in Saint John, an Olympic equestrian and a UNB alumnus like his father and his mother, Janet (BPE’63). The land came from Janet’s late father, D.C. (Chet) Campbell (BScEng’35), a prominent businessman and former chairman of the UNB Board of Governors. He discovered and fell in love with the area when he was duck hunting in the 1940s.

Rob and his wife, Suzanne (BBA’93), are co-chairs of the four-day event.

“Rob always had a dream after the Olympics in ’92 and this is where he did a lot of his training,” Stevenson says. “I knew when he was riding up and down on these fields he had something bigger in mind for this property.”

Rob’s brother Jon (BBA’97), who is involved in the New York financial world, is on the organizing committee along with his wife, Savannah, a New York lawyer. >>

Rob Stevenson negotiates a cross country obstacle with Sportsfield Two Doors Down

“They are good advisers,” Bob Stevenson says. “Rob is the dreamer and Jon is the one who asks how things will work.”

Three of Stevenson’s grandchildren also are at the site: Robbie, CC and Grace who, at 11, is already an accomplished rider. The interest and involvement in horses now spans at least four generations of the family.

“This has become a family activity for all of us.”

Stevenson, a retired businessman who had a successful career in the international heavy equipment brokerage business, is not much of a rider himself. But he was quick to jump on a horse and show enthusiasm for the sport when he first met Janet in 1959. He likes to say it’s the longest introduction he has ever experienced.

Foshay International offers the largest prize money purse in the country for young competitors. Stevenson says one rider won $11,500 in 2018. “Not surprisingly, she was back this year.”

There are three main elements to the competition: dressage, cross-country and the crowd pleaser - show jumping.

A number of the jumps are unique, including several massive pine logs sourced from the Doaktown NB area. Some of the logs are left on the Foshay field year round and are anchored so they can’t be carried away by the annual floods. Two eye-catching wood ducks – the size of large horses – are set on the floor of a water jump and will be lifted out and stored indoors with other signature jumps until next year.

It’s estimated the competition brings well over $1 million in ancillary benefits, especially for the nearby communities of Jemseg, Cambridge Narrows and Gagetown. So, there is enthusiasm for the Stevenson family dream to see Foshay continue to expand and become a destination sports event.

As the 2019 competition ended, Stevenson says planning already is well under way for 2020. The organizers are hoping to increase the number of qualifying levels to entice more riders, but it’s a complicated and closely-monitored process under FEI rules.

The family commitment to the event is for 20 years.

“We are getting a great deal of positive feedback,” he says. “The potential for Foshay International is unlimited.” 🌱

FIRST ALUMNI LEGACY SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENT

Laura Palmer is the inaugural recipient of the Alumni Legacy Scholarship. Nominated by Susan and Jeff Reid, Palmer, a third-year business student at UNB Fredericton, was selected from a large pool of deserving candidates who all demonstrated their commitment to their studies, their community and to UNB. Palmer has been awarded numerous scholarships throughout her time at UNB, as well as held positions with the Student Representative Council, Business Administration Society, Student Council Finance Committee, and the Relay for Life and Promise Partnership.

ALUMNI COUNCIL

WELCOME NEW COUNCIL MEMBERS

SARAH BIRCH

(née Lawson, BBA'01, LLB'04), Bedford, NS

Sarah worked in Alberta as a contract negotiator in oil and gas for a number of years before returning to the east coast two years ago. She now lives in Bedford, NS, with her husband and two children, and runs a blog about family life and loving where you live. She studied at both the Saint John and Fredericton campuses and was the first UNB Saint John exchange student to France. She looks forward to giving back to her alma mater.

BEVERLY GUIMOND

(née Ziobwa, BBA'04) Saint John, NB, treasurer

Beverly is a certified professional accountant and governance professional. Attending UNB opened many opportunities that have shaped her career, including the co-op program. She is looking forward to giving back to the community that offered so much and being more actively engaged with fellow UNB alumni.

STEPHANIE FOX

(BBA'04), Rothesay, NB

Stephanie is vice-president of the Saint John Regional Hospital Foundation, supporting provincial health care needs and those of the hospital. She is a global fellow with United Way Worldwide, a 21inc alumna, holds her CFRE designation and was honoured by Association for Healthcare Philanthropy (AHP) Top 40 Under 40. She is excited about sharing her experience, and gaining the same from others, in advancing her alma mater's growth across both campuses.

ANDREW MARTEL

(BCS'15), Fredericton, NB

Andrew is a consultant with Axsium Group, and has moved back to Fredericton, from Toronto. Alongside his fiancé (also a UNB grad!), he has co-founded Media Odyssey, a social media management and video production team. While at UNB, he had the opportunity to be involved with some great groups and clubs, including the Student Union and The Brunswickan. He hopes to work with the Alumni Council to provide opportunities to current and future students, while continuing to grow and improve the UNB alumni family.

High tea

AT UNB

A sterling donation with historical significance

No one knows exactly how it was first acquired, but a unique sterling silver tea service donated to the university has been in the Tibbits family for at least four generations. And given the Tibbits family's long and historic connection to UNB and the province, its return to New Brunswick is cause for a bit of celebration, if not a full-fledged formal tea.

It all began with the Honourable James Tibbits (1804-1890), a successful operator, manufacturer and shipper of lumber, initially based in Andover, NB, and later near Levis, QC. According to the Graves Papers in the Provincial Archives of New Brunswick, he "was one of the earliest lumber operators on the upper St. John River."

James Tibbits was also elected to the Provincial Parliament (as it was then known), representing Carleton, and later Victoria, counties, but it was most likely his business, which involved shipping lumber to England, that brought the tea service into the family. Dating from the early years of Queen Victoria's reign in the 1830s, the four sterling silver pieces that comprise the original set are engraved with an intricate Chinese motif characteristic of that period, and the initials of his wife, 'AJT.' The tea and coffee pots also have small Chinese figures affixed to their lids.

The tea service passed to James and Ann's son, Richard White Longmuir Tibbits, when James died in 1890. And this is where the UNB connection comes to the fore.

Richard Tibbits was the uncle of Mary Kingsley Tibbits, the first woman student admitted to UNB in 1886 after a long and determined battle with the authorities, beginning in 1885. (The fact Richard was a member of the provincial Parliament from 1882 to 1884 was no doubt helpful in turning the tide.)

What's more, Richard was the father of Annie Isabel Tibbits, who followed her cousin Mary to UNB, graduating with a bachelor of arts degree in 1896. Annie was among the founders and served as the first president of the UNB Alumnae Society, the organization representing women graduates, established in 1910.

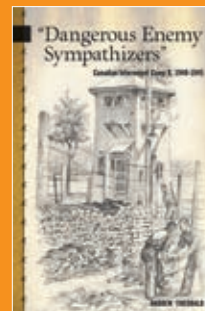

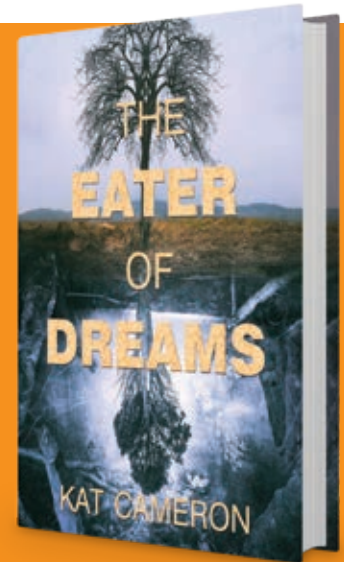

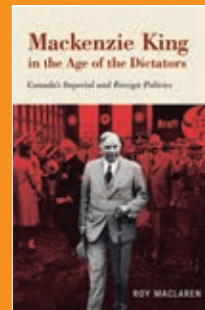

Annie, who married Harry G. Chestnut of the Chestnut Canoe family, remained very active in the alumnae society, as did her daughter, Maggie Jean Chestnut (BA'27), for whom UNB's first women's residence, now the home of Renaissance College, located on Charlotte Street, is named.

Annie inherited the tea service upon her father's death in 1924, adding a hot water pot, waste bowl and large tray engraved with the initial C. Upon her death in 1962, the tea service passed to her great niece, Joann Lamb of New York, who spent many summers at her great aunt Annie's cottage on Grand Lake, NB. It was Lamb who decided with her sister this spring that the tea service belonged at UNB.

The tea service will reside at Renaissance College in a display case outside the office of Acting Dean Paul Howe, who is pleased to have such a historic artifact come home. It will have a place of honour at special occasions such as the annual Dean's List Tea and next year's 20th anniversary celebration of Renaissance College. 🍵

LESTOCK FINALE LEAVES legacy of hope

Leslie Bruce scholarship recipients Rachel Forbes and Reid Sutherland with UNB President Paul Mazerolle.

On Aug. 3, hundreds of alumni and friends gathered at Glenwood for Lestock 7, the finale in a series of memorial fundraisers that has spanned 13 years.

Lestock was launched to commemorate the life of UNB student and environmentalist Leslie Bruce (BEd'07, d.2006) through the creation of the Leslie E. Bruce Environmental Scholarship Fund. What started off as a single fundraising event has turned into one of the largest summer gatherings on the lower St. John River.

Bruce's father, Michael H. Bruce, says "it's been quite a remarkable ride."

"Leslie was passionate about the environment from a very young age," Bruce says. "That was her legacy, so I wanted to set up this scholarship to help students like her."

"Our first event was a golf tournament," he says. "We had maybe 250 people come and raised $14,000. The past three events have all been in the range of 700 people, and Lestock 7 raised more than $100,000."

That generosity has enabled UNB to grow the Leslie E. Bruce Environmental Scholarship from one award of $5,000 to two scholarships worth $10,000. It is awarded to students who show promise of becoming leaders in the environmental field and who are pursuing studies abroad. Since 2007, 14 students have received this prestigious award.

Bruce credits Lestock's success to his wife, Anne and son, Andrew, Steve and Coleen Carson, and Brad Mitchell, who make up the organizing committee, as well as nearly 60 volunteers. It was Carson and Mitchell who convinced the family to make Lestock a bi-annual event. UNB President Emeritus John McLaughlin helped set up the scholarship fund, while Past-President Eddy Campbell attended every Lestock during his tenure, a tradition continued by President Paul Mazerolle, who made Lestock 7 one of his first official public events.

Carson says hearing the scholarship recipients speak about their travels and environmental research has been a key part of the Lestock experience.

"The core of Lestock has been people who are inspired by Leslie's vision and motivated by her passion,"

Carson says. "When the students speak, it really connects with everyone, in terms of what the scholarship is for and how Leslie's memory and values live on."

At Lestock 7, organizers used a world map to illustrate the many countries where UNB students have engaged in environmental work, thanks to the Bruce family's initiative. The list includes Jamaica, Mexico, Thailand, Cuba, Australia, Tonga, southern Africa, India, Bhutan and Ecuador.

For all those students who will benefit in the future, the Lestock finale is just the beginning.

"Lestock will continue to have such a big impact," Carson says. "I'm proud that through the support of so many people over the years, the scholarship will be able to sustain itself going forward."

Bruce agrees. "Thanks to everyone who has supported us, Leslie's name will be forever etched in environmental studies at UNB, and students like her will continue to benefit. That's the legacy she deserves." 🌱

PICKETTS ESTABLISH MEMORIAL BURSARY IN SON'S NAME

When Bob Pickett (BScEng '61, MScEng '63) and his wife Barbara decided to deepen their generous commitment to UNB, they knew they wanted to do so in memory of their son, Ben.

Ben Pickett (1964-1980) is remembered lovingly as a young person who adored the outdoors. As a child, he spent his time building go-karts and tree houses, fishing, and farming (he had a particular affinity for growing large pumpkins). His parents expected Ben would go into the field of agriculture, but sadly his life was cut short at the age of 16 in a farm-related accident.

Ben is also remembered as someone who would willingly help others in his community. The Ben Pickett Memorial Bursary carries on Ben's spirit of generosity. The bursary is awarded annually, on the basis of financial need, to a student from Atlantic Canada, in either the bachelor of science or bachelor of science in engineering program. The inaugural Ben Pickett Memorial Bursary was awarded this September.

Ben's bursary is in addition to a significant commitment already made to the university through the Picketts' leadership investment in the UNB Institute of Biomedical Engineering's Centre for Adaptive Rehabilitation Engineering. This new research facility will allow UNB researchers to take neurological rehabilitation to the next level, helping to better understand how the human brain repairs itself and adapts in order to restore function to the body following traumatic injury or disease. Construction of the facility is expected to be completed this winter, with the official opening expected in the spring of 2020. 🌐

SCHOLARSHIPS, AWARDS AND BURSARIES

Thanks to donors, the following scholarships and bursaries not only support students during their studies, but throughout their whole lives.

DANIEL AHERN SCHOLARSHIP IN PHILOSOPHY

Field: Philosophy

Value: $1,000 • Number: 1 • Duration: 1 year

Donor: The University of New Brunswick
Department of Philosophy

Awarded to a Fredericton campus student who has completed at least the minimum requirements for the second year of the bachelor of arts degree program, majoring or honouring in philosophy. Selection will be based on academic achievement. Consideration will be given to students who have demonstrated improvement in their philosophy courses.

BARBARA BOYLE BURSARY

Field: Nursing

Value: $2,500 • Number: 2 • Duration: 1 year

Donor: Friends of Barbara Boyle

Awarded on the basis of financial need to students enrolled in the second or third year of the bachelor of nursing degree program or the bachelor of nursing advanced standing degree program. Recipients must be from the Chaleur, NB, region and have demonstrated successful academic performance (minimum 3.0 GPA).

SARA BURNS SCHOLARSHIP IN MEN'S HOCKEY

Field: Unrestricted

Value: $2,000 • Number: 1 • Duration: 1 year

Donor: Friends and family of Sara Burns

Awarded to a Fredericton campus student enrolled in an undergraduate or graduate degree program and is a member of the UNB Reds men's hockey team. The recipient must have achieved a 2.0 grade point average for continuing students or an 80 per cent average for high school students, as per U SPORTS regulations. This award is open to transfer students, as well as students who are enrolled in a minimum of nine credit hours. The recipient must also have demonstrated a commitment to community volunteer work.

JAMES (JIM) BUTLER BURSARY

Field: Unrestricted

Value: Min. $250 • Number: 1 or more • Duration: 1 year

Donor: The family of the late James Butler and the New Brunswick University Opportunities Fund

Awarded on the basis of financial need to a full-time undergraduate student on the Saint John campus who is experiencing financial difficulty in the pursuit of an undergraduate degree. Recipients must be graduates of a New Brunswick high school and have successfully completed at least one term of full-time study at UNB with a GPA of 2.0 or higher. The recipient must be a New Brunswick resident, according to the definition of the Provincial Government's Student Financial Services guidelines.

DRS. BEVERLY AND MARIE JEWETT FAMILY SCHOLARSHIP

Field: Unrestricted

Value: $1,500 • Number: 1 • Duration: 1 year

Donor: The family of Dr. Beverly Jewett (BSc'40), long-time member of the Board of Governors and doctor to the varsity teams, and Dr. Marie Jewett, both great friends and supporters of UNB, and the New Brunswick University Opportunities Fund

Awarded to a student enrolled in an undergraduate degree program on the Fredericton campus. The recipient must be a New Brunswick resident, according to the definition of the Provincial Government's Student Financial Services guidelines. Selection is based on academic achievement and financial need.

DOONE MCEVOY PRIZE IN CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Field: Law

'70

PETER HUNT (BScEng) of Kennett Square, PA, has hopefully beaten another disease. Diagnosed with prostate cancer that was quite advanced, fortunately, it appears it was caught in time. The hardest part of the recovery was not being allowed to exercise (only walking) or track his Porsche. He is back on "track", running his normal seven to eight miles, and back to the race track. As was said by someone, rumors of his death have been greatly exaggerated. After all, he has to make the 50th reunion of his classmates next year. @

IRWIN LAMPERT (LLB) of Moncton, NB, retired after 30 years as a provincial court judge and was recently appointed to the Codiac Regional Policing Authority.

MARY MUNRO (BA, MEd'96) of Riverview, NB, is celebrating her 25th successful year in business under the name Sunshine Creative Life Management - SCLM/SGVC @

TERRANCE OWEN (MSc) of Carson City, NV, was named director of Global Lab Analytics Inc. the wholly owned subsidiary of Goldrea Resources Corp.

'71

DAVID MACNAUGHTON (BA) of Washington, DC, is joining Palantir Technologies as president of its Canadian offices, after having served as Canada's ambassador to the United States.

DAVID SMITH (LLB) of Moncton, NB, has retired as the Court of Queen's Bench chief justice after a 26-year career on the bench.

A DEDICATION TO STUDENTS

CATHERINE SUTHERLAND (BA '78, BBA '94) HAS A LONG HISTORY OF COMMITMENT TO UNB, AND SHE HAS ENSURED THAT DEDICATION WILL CONTINUE FOR YEARS TO COME.

Catherine comes from a UNB family, and because her father didn't finish his degree at UNB, it was important to him that Catherine had the opportunity to finish hers.

Like her late husband Gerald, Catherine came from humble beginnings. While a student at UNB, Catherine always worked part-time to avoid incurring a large debt load. Years later, she realized that this fear of debt had prevented her from experiencing all that university life had to offer, and this inspired her giving to UNB. "I want to assist young students so they will have a more fulfilling university experience," she said.

Catherine is motivated by a strong desire to help women succeed. As with her volunteer work for the Chalmers Hospital Foundation and Liberty Lane, she sees her giving to UNB as women helping women in a way that makes a real difference. In 2018, inspired by UNB women's hockey coach Sarah Hilworth's passion for the team, Catherine established the Catherine Sutherland Scholarship in Women's Hockey at UNB. This scholarship, awarded to a student who has demonstrated talent in women's hockey, helps students focus more fully on their academics and their sport by relieving some of the financial stress that university brings.

The inaugural recipient of the Catherine Sutherland Scholarship in Women's Hockey, in 2018-2019, was Reds goaltender Kendra Woodland of Kamloops, BC. Kendra was named UNB Female Rookie of the Year, Atlantic University Sport Rookie of the Year, and UNB's

Most Valuable Player. Catherine is proud to have played a part in Kendra's success. "I was so honoured to be part of Kendra's life," Catherine said. Catherine continues to be close to Kendra, and to this year's recipient, Reds forward Tamina Kehler of Chilliwack, BC.

While Catherine's main motivation is making a difference in students' lives rather than building a legacy, she wanted to ensure that students would continue to benefit for years to come – and that is why she donated a life insurance policy to UNB. Catherine recommends a gift of a life insurance policy to her fellow alumni because it is an easy way to give. "Life insurance policies are good for families that have long-term plans and wills in place," she said. "An insurance policy makes it so easy for those families – they don't have to alter anything the family has decided on. That's the great benefit."

You can make UNB the beneficiary of a life insurance policy, and it is even more advantageous to your estate to make UNB both the owner and beneficiary of the policy. The death benefit of a life insurance policy is not counted as part of your estate, so it does not add to the estate's tax burden.

"UNB attracts some of the best and brightest students," Catherine said, "and it is our duty as alumni to nurture, support and enable students to pursue their passion and remain active through athletics, clubs and community activities." ■

UNIVERSITY OF NEW BRUNSWICK

DONOR HONOUR ROLL

May 1, 2018 - April 30, 2019

The University of New Brunswick is a remarkable institution with a unique history, as well as a deep commitment to excellence, achievement and impact. Our University's people, programs and institutional purpose have enabled UNB to be a force for positive change in New Brunswick, the Maritimes and Canada since 1785.

None of this would have been possible without a multitude of partnerships and the support of donors like you.

Thanks to the generosity and commitment of our alumni and friends, UNB has been able to build state-of-the-art facilities and research units, attract world class faculty, support nationally renowned athletic and artistic programs and give our students access to a comprehensive range of knowledge and experiential learning.

With each gift to UNB, our donors are investing in the future of our region and nation and generating significant results in areas such as health care, entrepreneurship, sustainable resource development and early childhood education.

Universities are places where opportunities are discovered and futures are made. Thank you for all you have done to create new opportunities for our faculty and students, enabling them to lead Canada's next wave of innovation.

Thank you!

Dr. Paul J. Mazerolle
President and Vice-Chancellor

JILL LAMB

Bachelor of Science 2019

DRIVING CHANGE

What started as a simple conversation about biology mid-terms has turned into a defining conference for women in science, technology, engineering and mathematics at the University of New Brunswick.

Jill Lamb (BSc '19), who chaired the J.D. Irving, Limited, 2019 Girls STEM Up Conference, believes the event sparked an important discussion on gender inequity in the STEM fields and will be an important stepping stone for female students who are focused on entering sectors traditionally dominated by men.

"It is a conversation that needs to keep happening," Jill said of the conference.

Jill and eight dedicated students organized the event in just over three months, attracting a sold-out audience of 250, that ranged from high school students to industry leaders.

"We had such a great roster of speakers who were so incredible, so motivating for this young demographic of women trying to build their careers in these sectors," Jill explained. "You need reassurance from others in order to find what you are passionate about and stick with it."

The concept for the conference arose following a chat that Jill had with a group of first-year science students who thought that the only path after a bachelor of science was a career in medicine - a highly competitive field where only a few of the best are accepted.

"It really frustrated me."

After discussing it with her peers, Jill knew something needed to be done.

"We were incredibly excited when JDI extended an offer as the title sponsor," said Jill. "To us, it was validation that someone else believed in the same vision and goals."

JDI has a long history of supporting initiatives at UNB, particularly ones that strive to make a positive difference in communities and promote social sustainability.

"We are pleased to partner with and support the Girls STEM Up conference," said Colleen Baxter, VP of Human Resources with JDI. "We are committed to help empower the younger generation of females to get excited about pursuing careers in STEM."

"There are so many opportunities and it is an absolute pleasure to support an event so focused on driving this kind of change. Our organization alone forecasts 7,500 full-time hires over the next three years - many in STEM fields," said Baxter.

Plans are already underway for a bigger and better conference next year. Part of Jill's motivation for creating the event was to make a positive change that could stay at UNB for more than her last year of university, and thanks to JDI, this dream has indeed become a reality.

BUILDING A BETTER NEW BRUNSWICK

DR. HERB EMERY

Vaughan Chair in Regional Economics

One of many new initiatives Dr. Herb Emery has spearheaded in his three plus years as the Vaughan Chair in Regional Economics, the recently established Atlantic Institute for Policy Research (AIPR) will be an invaluable resource in the Chair's efforts to inform policy development in the region. The Institute will help government and members of the public better understand the factors capable of influencing growth in the province and beyond.

As the Director of the AIPR, Dr. Emery envisions the Institute filling a need for high quality, timely and region-specific research that is of interest and relevance to both academics and the general public. Its work and findings will help educate decision makers and influence public policy to improve New Brunswick and regional economies.

A key component of the AIPR, created through a partnership with J.D. Irving, Limited, the JDI Roundtable on Manufacturing Competitiveness in New Brunswick focuses on delivering current pertinent research to industry, government, investors and the public at large. The centerpiece of the JDI Roundtable is its annual Roundtable Forum. In September, the inaugural forum brought together manufacturers, business leaders, analysts, academics, government officials and members of the public for a frank and illuminating discussion about the economic future of the province and how manufacturing can drive growth.

By better understanding New Brunswick's traditional strength in manufacturing, how to encourage private sector investment in the province, and pressing issues like labour supply and labour shortage, Dr. Emery and his collaborators aim to develop a blueprint for building a better economy and a stronger New Brunswick.

MADE POSSIBLE BY DONORS

THANKS TO DONORS, Kendra Woodland earned the title of AUS Women's Hockey Rookie of the Year. The first-year goaltender from Kamloops, BC played in 23 regular season games in 2018-19 for the UNB Reds in their first season back in the AUS.

UNB'S TRUST & ENDOWMENT FUND

consists of endowed or expendable gifts that are generally restricted by the donor for specific purposes. An endowed gift is one in which the donor specifies that the gift principal is to be invested in perpetuity and only the investment income earned can be spent on the specified purpose. An expendable gift is one where the donor indicates that both the gift principal and any investment income earned on the gift may be spent. The Board of Governors has established a spending policy for endowed gifts which is designed to ensure a steady and consistent stream of income for expenditures, even if an account's principal fluctuates from year to year. In any year in which investment returns exceed the return required to support the level of endowment spending permitted under the spending policy, the excess return is allocated to a timing reserve. The timing reserve is utilized to support spending in those years when actual returns are less than the long-term target. In this way, the University is able to maintain stable spending rates despite year to year fluctuations in actual returns within normal market cycles.

The Long-term Investment Fund for the Trust & Endowment accounts had a positive return of 8.74% for the year ended April 30, 2019, a period in which the policy benchmark return was 8.18%. This followed returns of 2.97% for the year ended April 30, 2018 and 16.04% for the year ended April 30, 2017.

2018-2019 was a period of good performance across most capital markets, albeit with much volatility within the period. Global equities, as measured by the MSCI World Index, returned 11.35% in Canadian dollars. Canadian equities, as measured by the S&P/TSX Composite Index, returned 9.60%. Canadian Bonds, as measured by the FTSE TMX Canada Universe Bond Index, returned 6.07%.

The Fund's external investment managers seek to add value to these benchmark index returns through active management of the portfolio. In 2018-19, UNB's fixed income manager's return essentially mirrored the benchmark. Within the equity sector, results were mixed. The Canadian manager and one of three global managers were successful in adding value to their respective benchmarks while the remaining two global managers and the Total Equity manager trailed their benchmarks (although with positive returns). Within the Fund's newest asset classes, Emerging Markets and Real Estate, managers added significant value to their benchmarks. The overall result is that the Fund outperformed the composite policy benchmark by 56 basis points for the year.

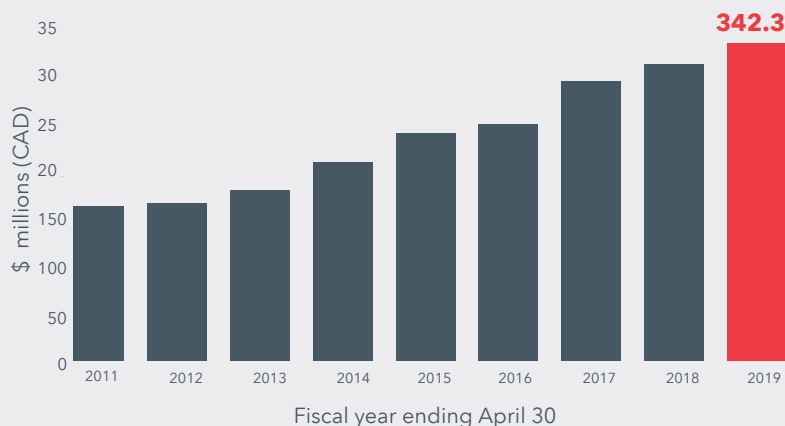

UNB has taken a prudent, fiscally responsible approach to endowment spending, making incremental changes to the spending rate to ensure that the rate is sustainable while remaining competitive with other Canadian Universities. The 2018-19 annual review of the endowment spending policy confirmed a 4% spending rate for 2019-20 which has been the spending rate since 2013-14.

The Fund's assets are managed by external professional investment management firms. In addition, the Investments Committee uses the services of an external custodian and performance measurement firm. In 2018-19, the Investments Committee completed a comprehensive review of investment management and other investment related fees, comparing costs to those of other Canadian university endowment funds.

The results of the review indicated that total investment related fees (which include investment manager, custodian, performance measurement and investment consultant fees) are equal to the average fees and slightly below the median fees paid by other Canadian university endowment funds of a similar size.

MAKING HEALTH CARE MORE ACCESSIBLE

DR. ANAT ZIV

Purdy Crawford Fellowship
in Health Policy

After completing her doctoral studies in Demography at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem (Israel), Dr. Anat Ziv knew she wanted to make her primary research focus the health status of the working age population. Thanks to the Purdy Crawford Fellowship in Health Policy, she was able to do that by coming to the University of New Brunswick.

Drawing in part on data from national health surveys, Dr. Ziv is illuminating the main obstacles to health care access and identifying population groups with the highest unmet health-care needs. Her research is helping provide a fuller understanding of the challenges faced by older Canadians living with chronic conditions, and how these challenges, which can lead to delays in seeking or obtaining preventive services or medical treatment, often result in a greater risk of complications from their illnesses.

Dr. Ziv is also addressing questions of how unmet needs for primary and community-based care may relate to the use of more expensive hospital services down the line. Her work indicates that hospital admissions for many chronic medical conditions such as diabetes, lung disease and heart disease can often be delayed or prevented entirely through improved access to quality primary care. Making innovative use of new linked data resources available through Statistics Canada's Social Data Linkage Environment, Dr. Ziv is investigating these complex and increasingly crucial issues to better identify the specific factors that influence health trends over time.

Funding from the Purdy Crawford Fellowship in Health Policy is allowing Dr. Ziv to focus on this research and help us better understand patterns in health services utilization and access to care, as well as how this knowledge can be used to improve patient outcomes related to chronic disease prevention and management.

BROTHERS & BUSINESS SCHOLARS

BLAKE ROSS KENT ROSS

Bachelor of Business Administration 2019

For two brothers from St. Andrews, NB, the true connection to each other was cemented halfway around the world.

For approximately 18 months, Blake and Kent Ross toured Australia, a low-budget, post-high school adventure that sometimes involved living out of their car while they worked odd jobs. It taught them about life, helped them realize their goals and allowed them to gain a greater appreciation for Canada.

It's a unique bond that continued to flourish at UNB Saint John, where Kent, 25, and Blake, 23, each graduated with Bachelor of Business Administration degrees in 2019, each with distinction and an economics major.

"It is a combination of competitiveness and collaboration," said Kent, of how their relationship was one part sibling rivalry and one part brotherly love. "In comparing ourselves to each other - we always had reason to push."

Both excelled academically and for most of their final two years of university, they shared an apartment and many classes. "We only needed to buy one textbook," Kent jokes. They credit their strong academic performance to solid relationships with their professors, which was fostered by the appealing teacher-student ratio on campus. The scholarship support they received was also instrumental in providing them with an opportunity to excel.

In addition to the many things they already shared, Kent and Blake each received the Alan MacGibbon Scholarship during their fourth and final year on campus. The $5,000 scholarship is awarded to three business administration students each year.

"The most important thing was time - it gave me time to focus on my studies," Kent said. "I definitely would not have done as well if I had not had that funding and needed to work more. The scholarship made a huge difference for me."

While some brothers might have allowed their paths to diverge after their undergraduate degrees, Kent and Blake are continuing along the same trajectory - both are now pursuing master's degrees in economics on the west coast.

FUNDRAISING BENCHMARK 2016-2018

Funds Raised per FTE Student for Comprehensive Universities

This chart represents a review of the Canadian Association of University Business Officers reporting of fundraising totals for comprehensive universities for the fiscal years of 2016, 2017 and 2018. The average donation per student was calculated using the number of Full-time Equivalent Students (FTE) as reported by Universities Canada.

DESIGNATION OF GIFTS

2018-2019

STUDENT SUPPORT: $6,746,019

Over 3,670 students received support through scholarships, bursaries, awards and prizes in 2018-19. They were made possible through gifts from generous donors and university supporters.

RESEARCH PROGRAMS: $2,134,172

Thanks to donors, researchers like Dr. Tommi Linnansaari are conducting important studies that aim to save the Atlantic salmon population of the Miramichi River.

CAPITAL MAINTENANCE: $2,355,286

Thanks to a gift from Dr. Richard Currie, Chancellor Emeritus of UNB, and his wife Beth, the living wall is one of the most unique features of the Kinesiology Building at UNB Fredericton, creating a relaxing atmosphere and cleaning the air.

TEACHING PROGRAMS: $2,120,311

Thanks to support from the Margaret & Wallace McCain Family Foundation, the Faculty of Education at UNB is leading the way in the Maritimes for Early Childhood Education program development and building ECE capacity in New Brunswick.

CHAIRS: $2,786,055

As the OSCO Research Chair in Off-site Construction, Dr. Zhen Lei is building upon the Faculty of Engineering's strength in civil engineering and helping lay the foundation for innovation in pre-manufacturing technology development in New Brunswick.

ATHLETICS: $437,958

Thanks to the Friends of the Varsity Reds - Men's Ice Hockey program, Phil Maillet excelled in his chosen sport at UNB and became the fifth UNB men's hockey alumna in 13 years to sign an NHL contract. He will play for the Washington Capitals.

OTHER RESTRICTED PURPOSES: $149,500

LIBRARY ACQUISITIONS: $2,823,049

UNDESIGNATED: $479,156

TOTAL: $20,031,507

GIVING BACK LIKE BEAVERBROOK

HANNAH MENELEY

Bachelor of Science in Software
Engineering 2019

During her five years at the University of New Brunswick, Hannah Meneley (BScSWE '19) could be found almost everywhere on campus.

The Canterbury, NB native initially dreamed of becoming a doctor, and considered enrolling in science. That all changed when a UNB recruiter visited her high school, discussing the merits of computer science, its role in software engineering and the ways in which it is key to problem solving. Hannah, who loved math, was immediately sold, and with the assistance of a Beaverbrook Scholarship, she was off to UNB.

One of UNB's top awards, the $50,000 scholarship is awarded to outstanding graduates of New Brunswick high schools who display high academic ability, financial need and make outstanding contributions to their communities.

Hannah embraced campus and community life from the moment she arrived at UNB, serving on numerous committees, raising awareness for women in engineering, leading a fundraising campaign for the engineering undergraduate society, speaking in public forums about her university experiences, and volunteering with the Multicultural Association of Fredericton.

Hannah believes the Beaverbrook Scholarship played a critical role in allowing her to serve her community as she pursued her Bachelor of Science in Software Engineering degree, which she received in May. And for this reason, just months into her first job post-graduation, she is already giving back to UNB through the Beaverbrook Scholars Award program.

Like the original Beaverbrook Scholarship, the Beaverbrook Scholars Award is one of UNB's top scholarships. The award was created in 1979 by a group of former Beaverbrook Scholarship recipients in order to pay tribute to their benefactor, Sir William Maxwell Aitken, 1st Baron Beaverbrook. And, through the Beaverbrook Canadian Foundation's dollar for dollar matching program, her contributions have doubled in impact.

"I whole-heartedly believe in this scholarship program. It is incredible," she said. "And the quality of education I have received is better than anything I could have imagined. I encourage other scholars to give back as well."

ALAN & JOYCE MCLEAN

BY INVESTING IN STUDENTS THROUGH A BEQUEST TO UNB, THESE CHAMPIONS OF YOUNG PEOPLE LIVE ON.

ALAN AND JOYCE MCLEAN ALWAYS BELIEVED IN THE IMPORTANCE OF SHARING - NOT JUST THEIR FINANCIAL RESOURCES, BUT ALSO OF THEMSELVES.

Alan, or "Al," was born and raised in Saint John, NB. One of five children with a widowed mother, Al and his siblings all worked to keep the family afloat, and he learned early that it is important to both work hard and look out for the well-being of others.

Al's strong work ethic led him to become a successful businessman. He was president of A.B. McLean & Co Ltd. and Merrill McLean Ltd., located in Saint John, Montreal and Ontario.

Joyce McLean grew up in Minto, NB, with 21 extended family members in the nursing profession - because of this, Joyce said she always knew what she wanted to do with her life. She completed her nursing training at St. Joseph's Hospital in Saint John, going on to work primarily in private nursing. Joyce met Alan through her work as a nurse, and the two were married in August 1976.

Together, Al and Joyce enjoyed life at home in Saint John and at their cottage in Grand Lake. They fostered four boys from the New Brunswick Protestant Orphanage who attest to their kindness, as the couple continued to support them through their education and careers.

This kindness had a broad reach. The couple gave generously to charitable causes during their lifetimes, and left significant bequests in support of healthcare, social services, and education - including a $65,000 bequest supporting the Alan B. and Joyce E. McLean Scholarship at the University of New Brunswick. The McLeans' scholarship, with matched funding from the New Brunswick University Opportunities Fund, is awarded annually to students on UNB's Saint John campus who demonstrate scholastic achievement and financial need.

Despite not having attended university themselves, the McLeans felt strongly about higher education. "We wanted to help young people in the province, to help local students," Joyce told UNB in 2008, adding, "Alan was always a great champion for the young." By investing in students through a bequest to UNB, these champions of young people live on.

With thanks to the Greater Saint John Community Foundation for generously sharing the photo of Alan and Joyce.

No surprise, most of us won't celebrate this many.

It might surprise you to learn that in 2016, there were over 8,000 centenarians in Canada*. As Canadians, we're fortunate to enjoy a high life expectancy, yet no one ever really knows what the future will bring.

So if something were to happen to you, would your loved ones have the financial reserves to be able to pay bills and cover living expenses? Alumni Term Life Insurance can help. It can be used in any way your loved ones need and now comes in two plan options – Term Life and Term 10. That's a financial safety net for your family, any way you slice it.

ALUMNI ANNUAL GIVING

Give each year.

Create opportunity for students every day.

At UNB, we believe every student who has the will to succeed at university should have the opportunity and encouragement to do so.

The investment you make in UNB through the Opportunities Fund helps students with unplanned needs or opportunities such as books, conferences, campus recreation and emergency support.
