Six degrees of separation

Over my term as president, I have had the privilege to meet with alumni literally from one coast of Canada to the other.

The past month alone has taken me as far away as Victoria and Vancouver, where we introduced UNB's new president to local alumni, to as close as Fredericton itself where alumni gathered to celebrate 100 years of hockey as the Fredericton campus played host to the CIS National Men's Hockey Championship. As I draft this column, I am returning from London, Ont., where local alumni from southwest Ontario had an opportunity to meet and hear John McLaughlin's vision for UNB.

This was the first opportunity I had to attend an alumni reception in London, indeed my first visit to that area of Ontario. While I have had a number of opportunities over my three terms as president to visit with alumni in Ottawa, Toronto, Vancouver, etc. and could expect to see familiar faces, I did not have the same expectations as I arrived for the London reception.

My title for this column is borrowed from the play by John Guare, whose premise is that any two people can discover a link between them through a chain of six acquaintances or less — a premise to whose validity I can attest after our London gathering.

Shortly after the reception started, an alumnus introduced himself to me. He graduated in electrical engineering in '49 and had been my father's lab partner during Dad's years at UNB. When I had been a boy soprano taking voice lessons in Fredericton, my voice teacher had twins a couple of years younger than me, one of whom is now a UNB graduate teaching in London. She and I were soon talking and catching up. One of the other grads in attendance was a former student of mine from the engineering faculty.

Others were making the same type of connections. John McLaughlin, seated for dinner across from a local alumni volunteer, looked up to see his high school math teacher. Listening to the flow of conversations around the room, classmates from one generation were discussing other classmates, who were recognized by members of the next generation as junior faculty during their years at UNB and as senior administrators by the following generation.

Should I have been surprised?

In many ways we, as alumni of UNB, are a family and the gathering in London was in a true sense a family reunion.

As a family, we each bring our own time, talents and treasures to play, working together to ensure that UNB will be a better place for students of tomorrow.

As my present term of office comes to an end, I must express my thanks to the Association's staff, in our offices in Fredericton and Saint John, for their support of our programs and initiatives, for their enthusiasm and for their dedication to our shared goals.

I must also express my thanks to the many alumni who through their volunteer efforts have permitted us to make concrete our support for UNB. From members of my executive, to members of the Alumni Council, to local alumni, such as those in London, without whose support such successful gatherings would not be organized.

To the known and the many more unknown, thank you.

In closing, I'll leave you with the immortal words from Sister Sledge: "We are family, get up everybody and sing!" We at UNB have a lot to sing about.

Richard J. Scott,
President, Associated Alumni

A fond farewell to the man known around UNB simply as Fred

UNB is losing — in the formal sense at least — a great friend as Fredrik S. Eaton steps down as chancellor this spring.

As you'll read in our cover story, Dr. Eaton has made a significant difference at UNB during his 10 years as the institution's honorary head. And while he's a member of one of Canada's most prominent families (as he once said of himself, "I was born with a silver spoon in my mouth."), you would never have known it. This was no better illustrated to me than when I called him 10 years ago in London, where he was then serving as Canada's High Commissioner to the U.K., for an interview for this magazine. I introduced myself, and then called him "Dr. Eaton." His response was quick, simple, and to the point — "I wish you'd call me Fred." So I did, and so did everyone else who worked so closely with him over the years.

He may be gone in the formal sense, but Fred will remain a UNBer, as he has been since he first arrived here as a student in 1958, and be among those who will always count themselves as being Proudly UNB.

Health and Dental Protection Today

Sarah Gencey

Product Director—Manulife Financial

Times have really changed. The days when university graduates remained with one company for a career span of 25 to 30 years are long gone. Today, the trend of self-employment is on the rise. And with it, the loss of group health benefits that corporations provided for employees and their families is leaving many Canadians in risky waters without nearly enough health protection.

In Canada, self-employment accounts for almost 18 percent of all jobs, or more than 1 in 6 people. This means that 2.3 million Canadians have ventured out into self-employment – up from 14 percent in 1989<sup>1</sup>.

The freedom to work for yourself and choose your own hours is extremely

Alternative therapy: If you injure your back at work or at home, massage therapy treatments with a registered massage therapist (RMT) can cost $30 or more for a single half-hour session. If you decide to visit an RMT once a week for a month, you could expect to pay up to $120 or more!

appealing. But, there are other factors that need to be considered and taken care of, like essential health and dental benefits for yourself and your family. Most people assume that they are covered sufficiently under their provincial health plan. What they don't realize is that provincial health plans cover less than they may think. Take a look at some scenarios which outline how little provincial plans actually cover.

Dental, prescription drugs, alternative therapies (massage therapy, chiropractors, naturopaths, etc.), semi-private hospital coverage and vision benefits – these health care items and services are essential for the well-being of your family. To ensure that all of your family's health needs are covered, you may wish to consider enhancing your provincial health plan by applying for the University of New Brunswick Alumni Health & Dental Protection plan.

The University of New Brunswick is pleased to provide the health and dental protection plan underwritten by The Manufacturers Life Insurance Company (Manulife Financial) for UNB alumni, just like you. The plan features affordable options to meet everyone's needs and price range. Plus, there's no deductible on health claims; they are paid on the first dollar incurred. Also, the value added feature of ManuAssist, a 24-hour emergency travel assistance program, is included at no additional cost to you!

Dental coverage: If your child is hit in the mouth with a ball or the end of a hockey stick, while playing street hockey with friends, some provincial plans may cover as little as $0 for dental treatment. The cost for emergency dental treatment in a situation like this could add up to about $850.

Since the University of New Brunswick sponsors the plan, you are guaranteed superior benefits at exceptionally low prices. If you would like to complete an application, or if you have any questions, call Manulife Financial's helpful Customer Service Centre toll-free at 1 888 913-6333 from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Eastern Time, Monday through Friday, or e-mail them at am\_service@manulife.com any time.

Take a few minutes to think about how a health plan, like this one, could enhance your provincial coverage and provide you and your family with the important health protection they need.

Engineering 2004: Celebrating 150 Years of engineering at UNB

When two men of great foresight, William Brydone-Jack and Sir Edmund Head, thought there should be more than intellectual and moral culture pursuits at King's College, they naturally thought of engineering.

Important engineering works of the time included great activity in canal and railroad building. This inspired the topic of the first engineering lecture at UNB on Feb. 15, 1854, to a class of 26 students.

It was the first engineering instruction ever delivered at a Canadian university.

King's College became University of New Brunswick in 1859; a diploma was established for the course in "Civil Engineering and Surveying." George Ketchum was awarded the diploma in 1862, becoming the first student to receive the honour.

In recognition of the 150 years that have passed since this first lecture, the Faculty of Engineering will be hosting anniversary celebrations beginning in February 2004. Watch for further details as they become available in the coming months.

For more information, telephone (506) 453-4570 or send an e-mail to engineer@unb.ca.

Books

The Afterlife of Trees

By Brian Bartlett (BA'75)
McGill-Queen's University Press
ISBN: 0-7735-1910-6

The Afterlife of Trees is Brian Bartlett's fourth full-length collection of poetry, and the first since Granite Erratics (1998). The poems in it, both pithy and expansive, bridge nature and human society, humour and elegy. Ranging from Buster Keaton films to a miniature Taj Mahal, from a celebration of sloths to an ironic look at the new millennium, from an urban garden to a ferry at sea, the poems tell stories and sing, question and praise. This book includes winners of both the Malahat Review Long Poem prize from British Columbia and the Petra Kenney award from London, England.

Amazing Stories from New Brunswick

By Peter D. Clark (Class of '84)
Penniac Books
ISBN: 0-9699648-5-4

Following the success of his first five books, Canadian best-selling author Peter D. Clark has written another fine read. The principal story chronicles the life and times of Danny Grant, Calder rookie of the year and a 50-goal scorer in the NHL. This is another collection of true accounts: The Paris Crew of Saint John, Ernie McLean (the Stock Car Promoter), School Life in the '50s and '60s, Winter Horse Racing at Gagetown, More Lumber Camp Stories, The Tobique Then and Now, and Clark's Canadian Literacy and Book Tour, to name a few.

Free to be Me! From Depression Valley to Plain Happiness

By Alvin Curley (MEd'70)
Five Pillars Publications
ISBN: 0-9730272-0-7

Free to be Me! is a psychology/self-help book containing several counselling models and life strategies. Putting happiness and inner peace into your life is not by accident. The three books in one is the author's personal journey of how he gained happiness and inner peace. He shows how to follow your dreams, set goals, and overcome adversity in gaining the freedom to happiness. Other common sense items such as parenting tips, following natural laws and holistic health are found among the many gems in the book.

The Story of Wilmot United Church 1791-2002, Fredericton, New Brunswick

By Anita J. (Boone) Jones (BA'65, BEd'66)
Published by Wilmot United Church
ISBN: 0-973227-0-5

This comprehensive history of the oldest wooden church still in use in Fredericton begins with a brief description of the Methodist roots of the congregation and its earliest church buildings and members. A detailed account of the current church (built in 1851-1852 after Fredericton's disastrous 1850 fire) and of the many people who are part of the rich heritage of the Fredericton Methodist/Wilmot United Church follows. The numerous illustrations include both black-and-white and colour photographs, as well as reproductions of unique archival documents.

Badges of Honour

By Arlee Hoyt McGee (BN'76, MA'88, DSci'97)
Print Atlantic
ISBN: 1-895613-38-8

Badges of Honour contains many coloured images of N.B. nurses' graduation pins, the history of the pins and a condensed history of all the N.B. nursing schools. The book provides accurate information that is of particular value to researchers and educators. Hoyt McGee's many publications include three histories of nursing, a consumer health guidebook and several monographs on N.B. nursing history. Her book of poetry titled Lifelines (written from a nurse/patient perspective) is used in several Canadian nursing schools and two in the U.S.

Long Reach Home

By Dianne Hicks Morrow (BA'67)
Acorn Press
ISBN: 1-894838-00-9

Like the strong beams of an old-fashioned house renovated to accommodate the bustle and love and frustration of a modern woman, the poems in this first collection portray the family and familiars that make the author's house a home. Reaching back through a family full of stories and characters, from Newfoundland on her mother's side to N.B. on her father's, they flow to childhood spent on Long Reach, along N.B.'s magnificent St. John River, into adulthood with family and friends in an old renovated farm house on P.E.I. Dianne Hicks Morrow's poetry has won prizes in the P.E.I. Literary Awards and the Atlantic Writing Competition.

Managing a Legal and Ethical Social Work Practice

By Marilyn J. Samuels (LLB'86) and Elayne Tanner
Irwin Law Books
ISBN: 1-55221-067-7

In the year 2000, the Social Work and Social Service Work Act came into force in Ontario. The act created a new college to regulate the activities of social workers and social service workers in Ontario. The purpose of this book is to help registered social workers and social service workers understand the new legislation and the effect that regulation by the college will have on their day-to-day professional lives. It provides a step-by-step guide to the act with practical information, including examples, precedents and forms that guide the social worker in meeting the requirements of the new legislation. While the book uses the Ontario legislation as its framework, it is of equal relevance to social workers practising across Canada under strikingly similar legislation.

$2 million worth of software comes to UNB via alumni couple MacLauchlan, McKenzie make yet another major software contribution

Having the right tools makes all the difference. That's why two successful UNB graduates have donated $2-million worth of Microsoft software to their alma mater.

Julia MacLauchlan (BA'77) and Warren McKenzie (BScCS'76), a wife-and-husband team based in Redmond, Wash., know the benefits of having access to the latest software. Ms. MacLauchlan is a senior executive with Microsoft Corp. and Mr. McKenzie is president of Redmond Group and chairman of the New Brunswick Innovation Foundation board of directors.

"We want to make a difference at UNB," said Ms. MacLauchlan. "Providing students with the most-up-to-date software available gives them an edge and increases opportunities for success."

The donation not only provides university-wide access to the newest operating system and software suite but also bolsters the research capabilities of certain labs.

"The impact of this gift on our academic programs is enormous," said Jane Fritz, dean of computer science at UNB Fredericton. "It allows us to stay current, enables our students to work in an industry-standard environment, and injects more flexibility into the operating budget we have to support our programs."

Glen Jordan, a professor in the faculty of forestry and environmental management, concurs.

"I've tried to ensure that each new crop of undergrads has the same opportunity to experience the excitement of computer technology that I had as a forestry student at UNB," says Prof. Jordan, an expert in geographic information systems and other computer applications in forestry. "This donation of Microsoft software will help me continue to make it happen for students pursuing a computer application minor."

On the research side, the new software will advance the innovative work being done by Prof. Jordan, his colleagues, and their students — work that is important to the knowledge-based industry in N.B.

"We know that New Brunswick has a tremendous wealth of talented, innovative people and we want to continue to help to foster that talent in a tangible way," says Mr. McKenzie.

Ms. MacLauchlan and Mr. McKenzie have supported the development of UNB's information technology capabilities for many years. This software donation is the latest of several, including a 2001 gift valued at $3.5 million. In addition to establishing the MacLauchlan McKenzie Lab in the faculty of computer science, the two have also sponsored numerous scholarships for UNB students in the areas of Spanish, women in technology, student leadership, and entry-level computer science.

Ms. MacLauchlan graduated from UNB Fredericton in 1977 with an honours BA in Spanish. She began her career as a teacher, directed a publishing company, then joined Microsoft in 1987 as a senior editor. Ms. MacLauchlan rose quickly through the ranks at Microsoft and, in 1993, moved to Dublin, Ireland, as director of the European Product Development Centre. She is now general manager of the Natural Language Group based in Redmond.

Mr. McKenzie earned a degree in computer science from UNB Fredericton in 1976 and is a member of the Associated Alumni Council. Prior to heading the Redmond Group, a consulting firm with an international client base, he held executive positions in a number of high-tech organizations. Mr. McKenzie has broad executive experience in innovative companies, ranging from start-ups to large multinationals. As the chairman of the N.B. Innovation Foundation, he is helping to foster a climate of innovation and cooperation among universities, the private sector and government throughout N.B.

Richard Currie to become next chancellor of UNB

Canadian business legend and Calumnus Richard J. Currie will be the next chancellor of the University of New Brunswick.

Appointed to the post by the lieutenant-governor in council, he will be officially installed on May 29 during the university's 174th Encaenia in Fredericton.

Dr. Currie (Class of '60, LLD'87) is the chairman of the board of Bell Canada Enterprises (BCE) Inc., Canada's largest communications company. As chancellor, he will serve as honorary head of UNB and as a member of its Board of Governors.

"We are honoured that Dr. Currie has accepted this important appointment," said John D. McLaughlin, president and vice-chancellor of UNB. "His expertise, advice and insight will be extremely valuable as we advance our role as a national university, strengthen our learning environment, and promote our fundamental role in the development of this province and the Atlantic region."

A resident of Toronto, Dr. Currie grew up in Saint John, N.B. He began his studies at UNB in 1955 as a Beaverbrook Scholar and was elected president of the first-year class. Dr. Currie completed his chemical engineering degree at the Technical University of Nova Scotia (TUNS), as was the practice at the time, and, following a career at Atlantic Sugar, earned an MBA at Harvard Business School. After that, he went to work for the New York-based management consultants McKinsey & Co.

Richard J. Currie is to become UNB's fifth modern-day chancellor in May.

In 1972 Dr. Currie joined Loblaw in Toronto and was named president of Loblaw Companies Limited in 1976. Under his leadership, the company increased its market value over 350 times in 25 years to $14 billion and became the largest private sector employer in Canada. He served as president of Loblaw's parent company, George Weston Ltd., from 1996 until spring 2002, raising its share price from $16 to $123. Upon stepping down from Weston, he accepted the chairmanship at BCE.

A member of the Order of Canada, Dr. Currie has received numerous awards for his professional and charitable work, including Distinguished Retailer of the Year for 1997 and Canada's Outstanding CEO of the Year™ for 2001. He was recently elected to the Canadian Business Hall of Fame and holds honorary degrees from UNB and TUNS, which is now part of Dalhousie University.

He is a former chairman of the advisory board of the Richard Ivey Business School at the University of Western Ontario and a member of the visiting committee to the Harvard Business School.

Dr. Currie has been an enthusiastic supporter of UNB since his student days. In recent years, he has served on the President's Advisory Council on Fund Raising, on the cabinet of The Venture Campaign, and as a featured speaker in UNB's Distinguished Speaker series.

"It is a great honour to be named chancellor of the oldest public university in North America," said Dr. Currie. "And to follow by half a century my original benefactor, Lord Beaverbrook."

As UNB's fifth modern-day chancellor, Dr. Currie will succeed Fredrik S. Eaton; Lady Violet Aitken; her husband, Sir Max Aitken; and his father, Lord Beaverbrook.

UNB enrolment increases six per cent across both campuses

If numbers tell a story, UNB is writing an impressive tale.

Snapping a five-year slide, UNB struck back with a six-per-cent increase in overall student enrolment on the Fredericton and Saint John campuses this academic year.

The turnaround was about meeting a challenge.

"Three years ago the university recognized that expanding enrolment through a university-wide, fully coordinated effort was the single most important thing we had to do," said UNB President John D. McLaughlin.

"Then we acted upon it."

Why the increased numbers?

"What is significant here is not only that the university recognized a need, but that it also exhibited the will to act on it," said Susan Mesheau, the director of UNBF's Office of Student Recruitment and Integrated Marketing (SRIM). "That approach resulted in a shift in focus and attitude across the entire university community."

The SRIM office opened at UNBF in 2001. UNBSJ's strategy resulted in the creation of an international student recruitment initiative and the Office of Advancement, Communication and Recognition. SRIM was given the recruitment objective of increasing full-time undergraduate enrolment at UNBF by 10 per cent by the year 2007.

"With a university-wide effort, we'll meet that [this year], a full three years ahead of schedule," said Ms Mesheau.

In Saint John, it's been a major success story with international recruitment efforts, which has greatly enhanced that campus's enrolment numbers.

University Women's Centre opens in Fredericton

Conversation. Information. Safety. Security. Respect.

They will all be part of the package offered to students, faculty and staff at the new University Women's Centre on the Fredericton campus.

Located in Room 129 of the Student Union Building, the facility was officially opened Feb. 12. Joanne Barr, who has been hired as the centre co-ordinator, describes it as warm and inviting meeting place with all the comforts of home.

The goal of the Women's Centre, which is part drop-in centre, part resource centre, is to work toward affirming the dignity of all women and empowering them to make their own life choices. It will offer a variety of support services in addition to educational, cultural and social programs, all in a child-friendly environment.

The Women's Centre houses a mini library with literature and videos on issues such as sexuality, parenting, violence against women and empowerment.

"The University Women's Centre will be what the university wants it to be, and that will be determined by the needs of all faculty, staff and students, not just women," Rev. Barr said.

Establishing the Women's Centre on campus has had a very positive response from students, with almost 50 volunteering to help out with special events and programs.

Rev. Barr said the centre has established links with the larger community, including such groups as Men Against Sexual Aggression (MASA) on campus, the N.B. Advisory Council on the Status of Women, the Fredericton Sexual Assault Crisis Centre, the UNBF Muriel McQueen Fergusson Centre for Family Violence Research, and the Muriel McQueen Fergusson Foundation.

"I see the Women's Centre playing an important role on campus and for the community — part think tank, part action central and part safe haven," said Wendy Robbins, UNBF professor of English and women's studies, and a member of the Women's Centre board.

Funds for the Women's Centre have come from a variety of sources, including the UNB administration, ALPS (Adult Learners and Part-time Students), the UNBF Student Union, the UNB Alumnae Association and private donor Mary Eberts.

Input sought on campus plan for Fredericton

A campus planning process that will set the stage for growth and development on the Fredericton campus for years and possibly decades to come has completed its first phase. But more consultation is needed, and alumni input is being solicited.

The UNBF campus plan steering committee has launched a website to encourage further input.

All of the campus planning documents, including the materials presented at the open house, can now be found at www.unbf.ca/campusplan or under Quick Links on the UNB homepage at www.unb.ca.

The focus of the campus plan is to produce a physical framework that will accommodate the needs of UNBF as it evolves in the coming years. The physical planning framework addresses issues such as building sites, parking, road and pedestrian circulation routes, campus gateways, interface with the surrounding community, environmental issues, safety, and aesthetic quality of buildings and landscaping. It will also consider needs for campus housing, campus services, recreation and athletic facilities.

Various concepts for parking, green space, traffic flow, and building development can be viewed on the website. Of particular interest are the five principles and opportunities — covering sustainability, safety, accessibility, history, character and community — that are central to the plan. These are presented for discussion and may evolve with the plan, which is being developed in consultation with planning firm BrookMcIlroy.

Interested alumni are invited to visit the website and to use the "Your Thoughts" function to participate in shaping the UNBF campus plan, which is to be completed this fall.

For more information, contact Mike Ryan, associate vice-president, campus services and planning, at 506-453-4525 or mryan@unb.ca.

CIS men's hockey tourney at Aitken Centre a resounding success

The only thing that could have put more of a lustre on the Canadian Interuniversity Sport (CIS) men's hockey championships at the Aitken Centre in March would have been a V-Reds gold medal.

Alas, that wasn't to be, but for the almost 30,000 fans who turned out for the eight games, the organizers, the volunteers, the sponsors and the Fredericton community, the nationals were an unqualified success. All games in the 3,712-seat Aitken Centre were sold out (including the Thursday and Friday afternoon games, when hundreds of Fredericton-area elementary students were given free tickets), more than 50 corporate partners came on board, and the event drew thousands of visitors to the city. Community support, particularly from volunteers, was described as outstanding by the organizers.

After almost two years of work by a steering committee made up largely of alumni, teams took to the ice on Thursday, March 20. Competing were UNB, St. FX, Université de Québec à Trois-Rivières, York University, Lakehead University and the University of Alberta.

The UNB V-Reds, who captured the Atlantic championship during the regular season, played their first game Friday night, overcoming Lakehead 4-3. On Saturday afternoon, the V-Reds squared off against Trois-Rivières in a game that would see the winner play for the gold medal on Sunday. Regrettably, the Reds lost 4-3 to the Patriotes, the eventual gold-medal winners by virtue of a 3-0 win over St. FX in the final. In Sunday's bronze medal game, UNB lost 8-2 to Alberta.

There was just as much happening off the ice as on.

The weekend before the tourney, the Faculty of Kinesiology hosted Skating Into The Future: Hockey in the New Millennium, an international conference that examined hockey at all levels. Among the guest speakers was Hockey Night in Canada host Ron MacLean.

And at the Coaches' Dinner on Saturday, UNB's Prof. Bill MacGillivray (BPE'62) was awarded the CIS's Joe Kane Volunteer of the Year Award for his many years of service to hockey both in N.B. and across Canada.

The nationals also left a very visible legacy. Only six days before play began, a new $100,000, four-sided clock, financed through corporate sponsorships, went up over centre ice at the Aitken Centre.

Now, and for the next year, organizers are turning their attention to Round 2. The nationals will return to the Aitken Centre next year, and, says UNB Athletics Director Clint Hamilton, "We look forward to an even better event next year."

EDUCATION • INDUSTRY • HEALTH CARE • TECHNOLOGY • ENVIRONMENT • RESEARCH

Momentum generated by fall launch keeps building

“Although I have lived in Ottawa for three years, my heart is still in New Brunswick. The education I received through the two degrees I earned at UNB prepared me well for a career in the federal government (now 20 years). UNB plays a pivotal role in advancing the development of a knowledge economy in New Brunswick, and I strongly urge Premier Lord to place increased interest — and financial support — towards this institution of higher learning. New Brunswick must aggressively seek out its niche in the global economy. UNB, if properly funded, will be one of the catalysts to the Province's economic success.”

These words, these sentiments, come from a 1978 and 1983 Arts graduate of UNB, who, although now living and working outside the province, was compelled in January to tell the Alumni Office — and the province — just how he felt about UNB's place in New Brunswick.

They're comments that were inspired by the Making a Significant Difference (MASD) effort launched by the university in September, and they're indicative of the momentum that effort continues to generate.

In the past two issues of Alumni News, we've devoted a considerable amount of space to explaining how MASD is designed to firmly entrench in everyone's mind how fundamentally important UNB is to all aspects of life in N.B. and beyond.

Research conducted at UNB is one of the six areas being emphasized through the Making a Significant Difference campaign and which illustrate the contributions UNB and its alumni are making to the province, the region and the country.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the lives and work of our alumni. There are 27,000 UNB graduates working in N.B., and making a significant difference in our communities. They are accomplished, enthusiastic professionals, and they are making enormous contributions to education, industry, research, health care, technology and the environment.

Specific examples of the contributions of our alumni in these areas formed the core of the MASD media blitz during the fall and more profiles of alumni who are contributing in these areas are to come.

At every opportunity throughout the winter and now into spring, UNB President John McLaughlin and other university representatives have continued to sound the core messages that are driving Making a Significant Difference: UNB's status as a national-calibre university must be sustained, its role as a learning institution must be advanced, and UNB's central role in the economic, social and cultural well-being of the province and Atlantic Canada must be promoted.

During the winter, Dr. McLaughlin also took the message outside the province, speaking to receptive alumni audiences in Vancouver, Victoria, and London, Ont.

The newspaper and television messaging initiative in N.B. media outlets about MASD was maintained through the winter and is about to enter a new phase this spring.

And the Proudly UNB component of the campaign continues as alumni send in both the hard-copy and electronic postcards by which they can express to the government their support for UNB.

Many of the alumni taking part in our postcard campaign have taken the time to include their personal feelings about UNB, much like the graduate quoted at the beginning of this story.

Some of the samplings from the alumni include "my experience at UNB changed my life forever," to "UNB was one of my greatest life experiences," or from one graduate now living in the U.S. who said "UNB gave me the opportunity to grow, learn and travel but most of all a chance to be a great ambassador for New Brunswick."

Another with a forestry background said he "constantly runs into UNB graduates right across Canada and we're everywhere, we're making a difference and we're proud to say we graduated from UNB."

As well, the Alumni Office has mailed out to alumni more than 1,000 information kits (see box to obtain yours) on how UNB is making a significant difference, and a further 500 general information kits were mailed out by the Office of Student Recruitment and Integrated Marketing (SRIM).

UNB celebrated a six-per-cent increase in overall student enrolment on the Fredericton and Saint John campuses this academic year, and in December the provincial government announced funding to UNB would be increased by 3.4 per cent next year.

The number of active alumni is up two per cent as graduates are jumping back on board to give something back to UNB. And there has been significant increase in media coverage of both the MASD campaign and UNB in general.

These are just some of the indicators that the MASD program appears to be positively affecting many areas at UNB, and it's all very gratifying to Dr. McLaughlin.

"Despite budget challenges, declining demographics in our traditional markets and increased competition and admission standards, we've jumped from declining or stagnant enrolment into a significant growth situation," said Dr. McLaughlin. "We acted upon a fully co-ordinated effort."

Ways you can become an 'active' alumnus/a

In addition to requesting a 'Proudly UNB' information kit, you can become one of our 'active alumni' by doing one (or all) of the following:

- participate in a university or alumni event;
- act as a volunteer in a university or alumni program;
- keep us informed about your life by keeping your address current, signing on to the Online Alumni Directory, or claiming an EFL account;
- make a donation to the university;
- send a Hither & Yon entry to this magazine;
- serve on Alumni Council;
- serve on Alumnae Council;
- vote in the annual Alumni Council elections;
- participate in the Alumni travel program;
- participate in student recruitment activities;
- serve on the UNB Board of Governors;
- provide scholarship contacts;
- send your children to UNB;
- volunteer for Celebration 2004 or Homecoming 2005.

That co-ordinated effort through MASD has been spear-headed by SRIM, and has involved all advancement offices on both the Fredericton and Saint John campuses. The director of SRIM, Susan Mesheau, like Dr. McLaughlin, remains enthused by progress to date.

"A primary mandate of the SRIM office is to build a stronger reputation and identity for UNB," said Ms. Mesheau. "We want to increase positive awareness of UNB by developing a consistent and focused identity by integrating and implementing university marketing efforts.

"The main messaging of the Making a Significant Difference program has already appeared to generate a new era. It's generated momentum and attitude at UNB.

"It's positively affecting a number of significant outcomes whether they be increases in government funding, active alumni involvement, donor activity, student enrolment or media attention."

For our alumni, MASD really is about what the association has been doing for the past two years — encouraging more of our members to become 'Energized and Involved' in the life of the university.

Become one of our 'active' alumni, and by doing so you'll also be making a significant difference.

It's all about UNB.

Be proud of it. Be part of it.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW BRUNSWICK BE PROUD OF IT. BE PART OF IT.

WE ARE PROUDLY UNB...

For us, believing in New Brunswick means believing in our university. We are Proudly UNB, a group of alumni from the University of New Brunswick that devote time to building awareness and support for our alma mater. Our goal is simple... get the message out that the university is vitally important to our province... to our industries and communities, and for our future.

PROUD AND PROACTIVE...

UNB is as old as the province itself. It has a long, proud history of graduating those who have built New Brunswick. It continues that tradition today. Those of us involved with Proudly UNB are extremely proud to have graduated from the University of New Brunswick and we want to actively inform, motivate and involve those who feel the same way. Because when it comes down to it, UNB generates the energy as to where our province can go by the graduates who will take it there.

BUILDING AND PROVIDING SUPPORT...

Proudly UNB wants to create a dialogue for, and between, our alumni here and around the globe. This dialogue will speak our message to companies and governments, students enrolled and those yet to come, that UNB is crucial to the future of our province. Together, we will be UNB's voice and speak loudly as to its importance and the necessity of our joint support.

DIFFERENCE

'A tireless champion'

The man who once said 'UNB made me' steps down after a decade as our Chancellor

An alumnus who has worked tirelessly for UNB for the past decade, including leading it through its most successful fund-raising campaign, is stepping down as the university's chancellor.

Fredrik S. Eaton, O.C. (BA'62, LLD'83) of Toronto has served as chancellor since 1993, and at May's Encaenia will be succeeded by Richard Currie (Class of '60, LLD'87).

Appointed to a five-year term in 1993, succeeding Lady Violet Aitken, Dr. Eaton agreed to a second term in 1998. He served as UNB's honorary head during the presidencies of Robin Armstrong, Elizabeth Parr-Johnston and John McLaughlin, all of whom commended him for his contributions great and small. But above all, all three say Dr. Eaton will be remembered for his absolute dedication to his alma mater.

It's a dedication that evolved through his UNB experience.

The Toronto-born, Upper-Canada-College-educated member of one of Canada's most prominent families chose UNB in the late '50s on the recommendation of a friend, John Bassett, who was a year ahead of Dr. Eaton and already enrolled at UNB.

Dr. Eaton took him up on it, and came to Fredericton with Mr. Bassett's younger brother Douglas. Dr. Eaton enrolled in arts and he and Douglas moved into Lady Beaverbrook Residence.

"Douglas and I had both been to boarding school so we knew what it was like living in residence," Dr. Eaton said in a 1993 interview. "I thought it was great. In those days, the house was run by Alvin Shaw." (Prof. Shaw was a long-time don of Lady Beaverbrook and professor emeritus of Spanish.)

After first year, Dr. Eaton moved out of residence, and increased his involvement in student affairs. Over the next three years he served on the SRC (running, unsuccessfully, for president), managed the hockey team, worked on The Brunswickan, performed in Red 'n' Black and chaired the Winter Carnival Committee.

All this experience had a positive effect on Dr. Eaton, a fact he was quick to point out in remarks he made during his installation as UNB chancellor in May 1993.

"I was born with a silver spoon in my mouth," Dr. Eaton said at the time. "Yet we are all, in a very real sense, self-made men and women. It is true we do not always start from the same point, but in the crucible of competition we all have to perform. No one in this, or any other day I suspect, can expect to be given a free ride or indeed a free lunch...."

"I am happy to say that UNB made me. Like many young people, I came here expecting everything to go my way. Not surprisingly, it did not. By the time I left I knew that we are what we make of ourselves. In the end we have no one to blame but ourselves. Many people to thank, but only one to blame."

After graduation, he joined the family business, T. Eaton Company Ltd., and worked in Victoria, B.C., London, England, and Toronto in a variety of positions.

He was appointed a director of the company in 1967 and became president and director of Eaton's of Canada Ltd. in 1969. In 1977, he was made president and chief executive officer of Eaton's and became chairperson of the T. Eaton Company Ltd. in 1988. He was appointed high commissioner in 1991, serving until 1994.

As chancellor, Dr. Eaton and his wife Nicky both attended and hosted countless UNB functions, often returning to New Brunswick for Encaenia, Convocation and other special events on either or both campuses.

In 1994, Dr. Eaton agreed to become chair of The Venture Campaign, the most ambitious fund-raising effort in the UNB's history.

Robin Armstrong was president of UNB at the time, and remembers Dr. Eaton's involvement with the campaign.

"There was an air of excitement at UNB when Fred Eaton accepted the appointment as chancellor in 1993," Dr. Armstrong said.

"For me, Fred's most significant contribution was as chair of The Venture Campaign. He stepped forward to assume the responsibility and, like everything he did for us, he gave it his all. Thanks in no small part to his leadership, the campaign not only succeeded, but exceeded the goal by $13 million.

"In fund raising, he was a great partner. We made many calls together, talking to potential donors and explaining the importance of UNB. Fred was a tireless champion of his alma mater and a great example of what a committed alumnus can accomplish.

"It's unlikely our paths would have crossed if we hadn't had the UNB connection. I'm very grateful we did."

Dr. Parr-Johnston also is quick to remark on Dr. Eaton's personal commitment to his role as chancellor.

"Fred was one of the all-time great chancellors," she said. "He cares deeply about UNB and has always been willing to do whatever is necessary to help. Several times I thought twice about calling for help, but every time I did call he was there for us."

One example in particular that sticks out in Dr. Parr-Johnston's mind was the acquisition of specially-made rings for the members of the Varsity Reds men's hockey team that won the national championship in 1998.

Dr. Parr-Johnston and alumnus R.H.B. (Bob) McLaughlin (BScCE'43, MScCE'59) arranged to provide some of the funding for the custom-made rings, but were still substantially short of the amount needed.

"I called Fred and his response, as always, was 'Leave it with me'," Dr. Parr-Johnston said. "I did and he came through for the team and for UNB."

Dr. Eaton formed a bond not only with the university, but with her and her husband Archie Johnston, the president said.

"Fred has never been a prima donna. He was incredibly supportive of me personally, something for which I will always be grateful. Nicky and Fred are a real team. Archie and I, as another real team, knew that from the start. Fred is a warm, caring and committed chancellor for UNB. There will be other fabulous chancellors, but he is the one who made a real difference."

Dr. Eaton's deep sentiments about UNB have also made themselves obvious to Dr. McLaughlin since he assumed the presidency less than a year ago.

"It has been a real honour for me to have worked with Dr. Eaton over the past year," Dr. McLaughlin said. "I've been especially impressed with just how deeply he cares about the university.

"There is no better evidence testifying to his commitment than the efforts he put forward on behalf of UNB in the appointment of his successor, Richard Currie. Dr. Eaton played an absolutely central role in the process that led to Dr. Currie agreeing to serve as our next chancellor. It wouldn't have happened without Dr. Eaton's personal involvement."

For his part, Dr. Eaton says his decade-long role as chancellor has been gratifying and he wishes his successor well.

"It has been a real pleasure to serve as chancellor of my alma mater these past 10 years," Dr. Eaton said. "Both Nicky and I have experienced a great deal of satisfaction from it and have thoroughly enjoyed our more than 20 visits to

New Brunswick during this time.

"It's been most interesting and rewarding working with three different UNB presidents — all of them very capable and committed, but very different in their styles and their strengths.

"I was very proud to have followed as chancellor in the footsteps of Lord Beaverbrook and his family and am very proud to have Richard Currie as my successor. The university will be well-served by this wonderful man.

"I'm sure he will rediscover, as I have, what a special place UNB is."

BEAVERBROOK'S CHOICE

The appointment of Colin B. Mackay as President of UNB

BY DR. JAMES DOWNNEY
President of UNB 1980-1990

Recently, in a resplendent ceremony in Saint John, UNB installed a new president. Dr. John McLaughlin has excellent credentials for the job. He is a well-trained and widely-respected expert in the field of geomatics engineering. He served a model apprenticeship through a series of administrative appointments, including as vice-president academic. There is good reason for confidence that UNB will enjoy sound presidential leadership in the years ahead.

Not every presidential appointment in the history of UNB has inspired confidence. 2003 is the 50th anniversary of an appointment that stirred fierce controversy about the nominee's qualifications and the way in which he was chosen. It also precipitated the abrupt resignation of the chancellor. Yet no past-presidency will have a greater influence on Dr. McLaughlin than that of Colin B. Mackay, for no other figure in the 20th century so affected UNB's size, shape, and character.

Mackay had many of the customary prerequisites for leadership. He was born into a prominent, affluent, high-achieving family. His uncle was leader of the Conservative Party of New Brunswick. His father was a lumber merchant well enough respected to be elected president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association. His mother was the daughter of a classics professor at UNB, and was herself born in the Old Arts Building.

Mackay was tall, slim, and handsome. He was also ambitious, and with the energy and desire to make good in some way on that ambition. He was a good but not brilliant student. Abstract reasoning and academic discipline weren't his strong suite. Curiosity about people and what made them tick was. He joined the Canadian navy fresh out of UNB in 1942, became an officer and commanded a landing craft at the Normandy invasion.

After the war he took a law degree at the University of British Columbia, graduating in 1949. Which means that in 1952, when he aspired to be president of UNB, he had been out of university only three years. The presumption of it seems almost breathtaking now, and was remarkable enough then. Perhaps it is best understood in the context of the time and of New Brunswick. As to the time, many war veterans were assuming senior positions in the expanding business and public sectors at anomalously early ages. As to New Brunswick, the province has always shown a preference, in both business and public life, for the young, buccaneering type, of which Beaverbrook himself was a prototype.

While Mackay's intellectual and social gifts certainly qualified him for a successful career in law, his temperament and ambition were not well suited to that profession. Drawing up wills, negotiating contracts, conveying deeds might pay well enough but they didn't satisfy his restless and curious mind. Through his work he came into contact with leaders (especially K. C. Irving) and was intrigued by their charisma and success. Having had a taste of leadership himself in the military, he was anxious to try it somewhere else.

So while it may have come as a shock to many associated with UNB that a 33-year-old with no academic administrative experience would aspire to be the institution's president, it made sense to his law-firm associate Mary Louise Lynch with whom, and with whom alone, he discussed his ambition. Lynch had mentored Mackay at the Saint John law firm of Gilbert, Ritchie & McGloan, and had observed his impressive talents.

From 1947 to his death, Beaverbrook's confidante and legal advisor in New Brunswick was Mary Louise Lynch. She looked after his interests and kept him well informed about people and events in his adopted province. She was also registrar of the law school that Beaverbrook helped to transform into a faculty of UNB. Her letters to him constitute a treasury of entertaining and informative commentary on social and political life in New Brunswick of the '40s and '50s. Scholars of Beaverbrook are in for a treat when they eventually become available. In one of those letters she allowed as how a certain young lawyer in her firm would make a fine president of UNB, then seeking a successor to Dr. Albert Trueman who had resigned the year before. Beaverbrook took her view as his own, and acted upon it.

Accounts of what transpired next are to be found in A.J.P. Taylor's Beaverbrook and in a private unpublished memoir of Prof. Alfred Bailey. The two sources diverge on some details but agree on essential points.

When Beaverbrook was visited in London by Premier Hugh John Fleming and Mr. Hugh Mackay, who were representing N.B. at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II, he told the two that his preference for a successor for Trueman was Colin Mackay, much to the astonishment of Colin's uncle Hugh Mackay. On returning home, the Premier informed the nominating committee of UNB's governing board (then called the senate) that it needn't deliberate any longer, which prompted the members to resign in protest. The senate debated what to do. Mackay himself tells the story of a lengthy meeting of the senate, from which his uncle Hugh Mackay, a member, wearily returned to tell him, "Well, it's unanimous. None of them want you." When word of all this reached Beaverbrook, he promptly resigned as chancellor, which, as reported by Bailey, "caused consternation everywhere."

The provincial government pleaded with him to reconsider. . . . Before long the government decided to introduce a bill in the legislature to reappoint him under the slightly different title of "Honorary Life Chancellor." They asked the new President, Colin B. Mackay, to draft the substance of the act with this end in view, and he asked me to work on it with him. Knowing how much Beaverbrook regretted having been born in Maple, Ontario, rather than New Brunswick, I made the suggestion that he be referred to in the Act as "a native son of New Brunswick," and this was accepted by the government."

Thus it was that Beaverbrook was appeased. In a letter that fall to Mary Louise Lynch, he offered some advice to the new president ("I hope the boy Mackay will stand up to his responsibilities. He should guard against quick answers and repartee is out of the question") and commented on his own part in the choice: "You mentioned

Colin Mackay to me. I mentioned him to Premier Fleming and Hugh. The name met favour with both of them. Now he is said to be my boy. I will have to get acquainted with him."

Nevertheless, before it had all been transacted, he managed to find a suitably clever way to show his displeasure at how UNB had treated him. At the same hour the youngest university president in Canada was being installed in Fredericton, Beaverbrook was receiving an honorary degree from St. Thomas University, then situated in Chatham, thereby stoking apprehension that he was about to shift the focus of his educational largesse.

Summing up all this, A. J. P. Taylor said, "[Beaverbrook] imagined that he could appoint a university president, just as he appointed a newspaper editor, and the event showed that he could. Mackay proved to be an energetic president, devoted to Beaverbrook's interests." Well, that's half the truth. The other half seems to be that Beaverbrook was equally devoted to Mackay's interests, at least to the extent that those interests bore on strengthening and expanding UNB. Where Trueman, by his own admission, had chafed at the peremptory style of the chancellor, Mackay knew a mentor when he saw one. It helped that he was young and anxious to learn. It helped that he was Beaverbrook's choice, and the choice widely known. It helped even more that Mackay was a quick study and determined to make a success of the job he had so controversially been appointed to. He had the ability to size up the situation, almost any situation, to figure out what was needed, and to pursue the ways and means to address it. When the occasion required it, he could subordinate his natural impatience and use charm to persuade.

And he was savvy too, savvy enough to know where his leadership initiatives would be effective and where they would likely be resented. He was quite content to let Professors Alfred Bailey (a humanist) and Frank Toole (a scientist) manage the academic agenda, while he concentrated on getting the resources needed for a quantum expansion that included 22 new buildings. And in getting resources the chancellor was invaluable. While during those years Beaverbrook did not himself build any major facilities at UNB, he was crucial in persuading government and wealthy friends to contribute to the university's fundraising campaigns, especially for student residences.

The partnership was at times hard on Mackay. On the day of the public dedication of the first woman's residence on campus, Beaverbrook instructed him to name it after Lady Dunn, even though the president had agreed with the Associated Alumnae that it should and would be named after UNB's first woman graduate, Mary Tibbits. Tibbits would have to wait till the second women's residence was built. Mackay knew people would be upset, but the prospect of attracting some of Lady Dunn's fortune to UNB was simply too alluring to sacrifice to sentiment. The gambit failed, however. Lady

Dunn would never make the contribution hoped for, even after she became Lady Beaverbrook.

Mackay would, by his own reckoning, lose 8 to 10 pounds during Beaverbrook's annual fall visits to New Brunswick, such were the demands "the old man" made of those around him. Yet Mackay is generous in his assessment of Beaverbrook's motives and actions. "UNB could not have grown as fast as it did without Beaverbrook," he once said. It is equally true that UNB could not have grown as fast or as strong without Mackay.

Not everything Mackay touched turned to gold, however, and he wasn't always far-seeing enough, as he is quick to acknowledge. He was opposed in the beginning to a separate campus in Saint John, but came later to be its champion. He will also without prompting allow that he stayed on in office several years too long, and found himself beset and UNB riven by student protest and faculty unrest.

That said, it remains true that the university John McLaughlin now pilots owes more to Colin Mackay's leadership than to that of any other president of the twentieth century. During the Mackay years the student body multiplied seven-fold, faculty numbers grew from 70 to 318, UNB Saint John was launched, the Fredericton campus expanded impressively with new buildings and academic programs, graduate studies and research were established in a broad range of disciplines, the law school was relocated from Saint John and St. Thomas University from Chatham, and UNB was transformed into a comprehensive modern university, relevant and responsive to the people and governments that looked to it for educational leadership.

As University Orator Donald Rowan once said of him, "He was a builder and an innovator, but above all he was a good gardener who cultivated the rich loam of custom and ceremony; one who knew that the beauty of the flower depends on the strength and depth of the roots."

ASSOCIATION ACTIVITIES

Etiquette Survival: Association helps students make right first impression

The Associated Alumni in partnership with the Faculty of Forestry and Environmental Management hosted a three-week pilot project this winter designed to help UNB students make the transition to professional life.

The project consisted of three separate sessions with special guest speakers who helped the young participants pick up tips on how to dress professionally, engage in the art of conversation, and learn the appropriate table manners in a business situation. The course was called Etiquette Survival: How to Make the Right First Impression. Registration was limited to 40 fourth- and fifth-year students.

It was yet another initiative undertaken through the association's five Key Results Areas (KRAs) in its Energized and Involved strategic plan, in this case the School-to-Work KRA.

A similar course was conducted for first-year students last fall by Yolanda Spithoven and Dave Daugharty of forestry and environmental management, and the latest project for older students grew out of that effort.

Vicki Lanteigne, the association's student relations and young alumni co-ordinator, said many young peoto the job market.

Ms. Lanteigne recruited help from the community, particularly alumni, in running the course.

Lori Jackson (BA'91) of Samuel and Co. and Paul Simmonds (BBA'84) of Robert Simmonds, both Fredericton-area clothing stores, conducted the session on proper attire, giving students the basic rules for building a wardrobe, grooming, accessories and other things that project a professional image.

Wilfred Langmaid (BSc'82, MSc'86), Anglican chaplain on the Fredericton campus, conducted the art of communication session, providing advice on initiating and ending conversations, composure, making introductions, and generally overcoming communication barriers.

Fred Fettah, general manager of the Lord Beaverbrook Hotel, walked the students through a private, full-course dinner in the final session, which covered everything from table manners to use of the cutlery.

The course drew so much attention that it prompted media coverage in the Saint John Telegraph Journal, the Globe and Mail, CBC National Radio and ATV.

Students win CIS tickets from UNB Associated Alumni

ASSOCIATION ACTIVITIES

Four acclaimed to Associated Alumni Council

Four people were appointed to Alumni Council this spring for two-year terms beginning July 1.

The four are Eric Burchill (BBA'92) of Halifax, Carol Foley (BBA'83) of Toronto, Judy Orr (BA'75, BBA'76) of Fredericton, and Marcia Trail (BN'73, MN '99), of Moncton, N.B.

As well, a new council executive will take office effective July 1.

Carey A. Ryan (BA'70, MEd'79) of Saint John will become association president for a two-year term, succeeding Richard J. Scott (BBA'74, LLB'76). Barry Beckett (PhD'70) of Saint John will become first vice-president for two years. Marti-Lou Neill (BA'69) of Fredericton will take on another two-year term as association treasurer, while Kathie Brien (BBA'67) of Saint John also will assume another two-year term as association secretary. Gary Lawson (BBA'76-SJ, LLB'79) of Saint John will serve another year as executive member at large.

Mr. Scott will become immediate past president of the association.

While it was announced in the winter edition of Alumni News that council elections would be held this spring, the limited number of expressions of interest in the four vacant council seats meant an election is unnecessary.

Saint John alumni seeking input on Celebration 2004

The Saint John Alumni Action Committee wants to hear from SJ alumni about a possible Alumni Celebration in 2004.

Next year marks some significant anniversaries for the Saint John campus — 40 years ago the campus was established — 35 years ago the Tucker Park campus was opened — 30 years ago marks the first official class to graduate at the campus.

If you would like to get involved in plans for an all-class celebration please contact the Alumni Office at 648-5906 or e-mail alumnisj@unbsj.ca.

OF THE ALUMNI NEWS

Thanks for your support!

You may already have noticed the tear-out insert in this edition of Alumni News about the Friends of the Alumni News campaign.

While the insert is pretty much self-explanatory, we did want to point out one further fact about Friends of the Alumni News:

Since Friends of the Alumni News was initiated in January 1997, a total of $104,219 has been raised to support this publication from 1,290 donors.

Most of those donors have been recognized in past editions of Alumni News, but we would like to take this opportunity to extend our sincere appreciation to the dedicated readers who already count themselves as Friends of the Alumni News.

Harris will be calling to check your info for alumni directory

By the time you read this, most of you will already have been contacted via e-mail or the postal system by Harris Publishing about your entry in the new edition of the UNB Alumni Directory.

We already know thousands of you have responded to Harris to either update or confirm your information for the directory project, but for those who haven't, there are still going to be lots of opportunities to do so.

Between now and the end of May, Harris will be sending postcards to all alumni with the exception of those who have opted out of the directory. The postcards provide a toll-free number for you to call to either update your information or confirm the information you have already submitted. The toll-free number is 1-888-877-6113.

From May 26 until July 21, Harris will be making outbound calls to alumni they haven't heard from. Between July 21 and July 28, the toll-free line will remain open for anyone Harris has left messages with to return their call. No information will be accepted after July 28.

Should you have any problem using the toll-free number, please contact the Alumni Office, which will arrange for Harris to contact you directly.

This will be the third Alumni Directory produced for the Associated Alumni by Harris Publishing. In the past, they've proven to be a great tool to help alumni keep in touch. The directories — in both hard-copy and CD versions — should be available in October. During the calling period, Harris will be asking alumni if they would like to reserve a copy.

For those who don't wish to be listed in the directory, call the toll-free number to advise Harris you are opting out.

Automobile Insurance Premium Increases: A Look at the Trends from Meloche Monnex

Those of you who subscribe to the Meloche Monnex insurance program have noticed, when renewing your automobile insurance, that premiums have increased substantially. This situation is far from exclusive to Meloche Monnex. In fact, automobile insurance premiums have been increasing rapidly in recent years throughout Atlantic Canada.

More and higher claims

There are several factors causing this trend. First of all, the number of claims is up considerably, especially bodily injury claims. The second increase is in the average cost per claim. The reasons? Automobiles cost more to repair, and health care fees are increasing. Legal fees are going up as well, because courts are making more frequent awards. The result is that it is becoming more and more expensive for insurance companies to cover the cost of claims. Some insurers have even withdrawn from Atlantic Canada.

Cost controls

The rising costs have naturally affected us at Meloche Monnex, as they have every automobile insurance company. Despite this, we have been managing to keep premiums stable for the past decade, by maintaining strict and effective cost controls. As a matter of fact, our cost performance is one of the best in the insurance industry. However, cost controls alone cannot keep premiums down, and we have finally had to adjust our prices. Naturally, we want to maintain our solid financial performance. More important, we want to keep offering you the excellent products and high-level client service you have come to expect.

What alumni can do

There are some things you can do to help keep premiums as low as possible. These include:

- drive safely and maintain a good driving record
- increase your deductible
- buy a vehicle that has a lower risk for theft or vandalism
- equip your automobiles with a Meloche Monnex-approved anti-theft system
- insure more than one vehicle on the same policy
- take advantage of our multi-product discount by insuring both your home and your automobile with Meloche Monnex.

Committed to continue serving UNB alumni

Meloche Monnex has been insuring professional and alumni associations for more than 50 years. And we're in it for the long-term. We intend to be there for the alumni of the University of New Brunswick and to continue to provide you with the competitive rates and superior service that our company is known for.

Annual General Meetings, Associated Alumni, Alumnae

The Annual General Meeting of the UNB Associated Alumni will be held on Saturday, Sept. 27, 2003, at 1:30 p.m. in the President's Room of the Alumni Memorial Building on the Fredericton Campus.

All UNB alumni are invited and encouraged to attend this meeting to learn of the latest developments with their UNB Associated Alumni.

The UNB Associated Alumnae Annual Meeting will take place on Saturday, June 14, 2003, at 11 a.m. in Room 103 at the Student Union Building on the UNB Fredericton Campus. All women graduates of UNB are welcome to attend. Lunch will be provided. To help with planning, register your attendance with the UNB Alumni Office 506-453-4847.

Margaret Lambert (Fraser, BA) of Fredericton passed away Feb. 17, 2003, at the age of 86. Born in Hatfield Point, N.B., Margaret graduated from Netherwood School in 1933. She earned her BEd from Dalhousie University in 1960. She was a teacher in the Halifax area during the 1960s and the early 1970s. She was active in numerous charitable and community organizations, particularly the UNB Associated Alumnae. She served three terms as its president and had been on the alumnae executive since 1978. She was presented with the UNB Associated Alumni Award of Honour in 1996. With her late brother

Leaving a Legacy

A librarian-educator, Dr. Eileen Wallace (BA'44, LLD'01) has taught generations of teachers. In 1973 when she became a professor of children's literature and library science at UNB Fredericton, she began to develop her own private collection of children's literature, which she willingly lent to her students. Upon her retirement in 1989 she contributed the over-2000 titles in her collection to the University to establish the Eileen Wallace Children's Literature Collection at the Harriet Irving Library. This collection now has over 15,000 volumes and is managed by a curator. The collection has attracted funding and support from alumni, the Province, and the University, but most especially from Eileen Wallace herself. Her great love and commitment to the Children's Literature Collection has inspired Dr. Wallace to establish an endowment fund through her will ensuring the Collection will be available for generations to come.

CORRECTION

In the Winter 2003 edition of Alumni News, it was erroneously reported that Fred Cogswell (BA) had authored a book of poetry entitled So Rarely in Our Skins. Dr. Cogswell was not the author of this collection. However, he has recently authored two books of poetry, Dried Flowers (2002) and Ghosts (2003) both published by Borealis Press, Ottawa. In addition, a double edition of the journal Ellipse was published in his honour in 2002, entitled Fred Cogswell, Friend of Poets. Dr. Cogswell also received the Queen's Royal Jubilee medal at a ceremony at Government House, Fredericton, in October 2002.

Ben Goldberg (BSc) of London, Ont., still has a part-time practice in developmental neuropsychiatry, and the year 2002, which marks 42 years assisting children and adults with developmental disabilities, was recognized in the community. First, by the Premier of Ontario's Amethyst Award for outstanding public services, then by a Founder's Award from Madam Vanier Children's Services (a children's mental health centre,) then a Senior Life Member Achievement Award from the Canadian Medical Association; with the most recent Life Achievement Award from the Regional Support Associates, a group of social work and psychology colleagues. Despite these 'lifetime' awards, Ben will be continuing his very satisfying work with his achieving patients!

UNBSJ plays host to badminton nationals

The UNBSJ Athletics Centre showcased the talents of some of the best badminton players in Canada March 6-8 when it played host to the Canadian Colleges Athletics Association (CCAA) National Badminton Championships.

Singles and doubles teams representing four regional athletic conferences — the Atlantic Colleges Athletic Association (ACAA), the Alberta Colleges Athletic Conference (ACAC), the British Columbia Colleges Athletic Association (BCCAA) and the Ontario Colleges Athletic Association (OCAA) — competed during the tourney. It was the first time UNBSJ has hosted a CCAA national championship.

The tournament organizing committee was chaired by Assistant Athletics Director Dave Munro, who received a lot of assistance from Athletics Director Bob Bonnell, Athletics Administrative Co-ordinator Tracey Burke and a host of volunteers.

When all the competition was over, the ACAC led the standings, with the BCCAA coming in second, the OCAA standing at third, and the ACAA finishing fourth, winning two bronze medals.

Bob McLaughlin creates showcase for UNB's All-Canadians

Plaques portraying the 74 UNB athletes who have been named All-Canadians in their sport since Canadian Interuniversity Sport (CIS) began selecting them in 1972 now adorn the concourse of the Aitken Centre, thanks to Professor Emeritus R.H.B. (Bob) McLaughlin (BScCE'43, MScCE'59). The display was unveiled just before the start of the CIS Men's National Hockey Championships at the Aitken Centre in March. The wall was financed through the R.H.B. McLaughlin Trust. Prof. McLaughlin has a 64-year association with UNB as a student, athlete (boxing, rugby, track and field), long-time engineering professor, and, of course, alumnus. Above, Prof. McLaughlin, centre, is shown with four of the athletes — all wrestlers — honoured on the wall. From left (with the years they were named All-Canadians) are Scott Seeley (1999-2000), Adam Valentiati (2001-02, 2002-03), Prof. McLaughlin, Andy Mitton (2000-01) and Rene Harrison (2002-03).

FACT: More than 15% of Canadians between the ages of 35 and 55 don't have any life insurance.*

It's 100% of their dependents who are really at risk.

Life insurance is for the living. Your life insurance could be all that stands between your loved ones and a lifetime of need. You see, it's not really insurance ... it's groceries, utility payments, clothes, car maintenance, loan payments, rent or mortgage ... in fact, it's everything that your family depends on you for right now.

FACT: The death rate of Canadians between the ages of 30 and 49 is 5.8 per 1,000.**

If you were one of the 5.8, could your family cope financially without you?

The unthinkable can happen. Don't let your family's story be a tragic one. For their security and for your own peace of mind, find out more about the valuable and affordable Term Life, Major Accident Protection, Income Protection and Extended Health and Dental Care coverage designed for alumni of the University of New Brunswick.

FACT: In Canada, life insurance represents only 2.4% of household estate planning.***

Life insurance is an affordable way to maintain your family's net worth after you've passed away.

Consider all the payments you make on a monthly basis. Perhaps you have a mortgage, outstanding credit card balances, car loans or student loans. If you passed away and your family cashed in your assets (home, RRSP's and other investments) to pay all you owe, what would be left? Would it be enough to provide them with a suitable lifestyle? Think about it.

Thinking ahead and purchasing insurance could make all the difference for your family's financial security.
