At the Office of the UNB Associated Alumni, we care about your privacy and take the matter very seriously. We recognize that our alumni are concerned about the information we maintain and how that information is used. As the basis for our own policy, we follow Canada's Personal Information Protection and Electronic Documents Act (PIPEDA).

My thanks to all of you for your support

As my two-year term as president comes to an end in June, I would like to take this opportunity to extend a heartfelt thank you to those who have made this time so fulfilling and enjoyable.

To members of the Alumni Council — you were open to new suggestions to the agenda and in the way our regular meetings are conducted. I believe we have been able to make our meeting times more productive and engaging. Volunteer council members have been provided with greater input on programming and with more knowledge about current university activities. Thank you for putting your trust in me and working so diligently over the past two years.

To alumni staff — which as an association we are so fortunate to have — Executive Director: Mark Hazlett; Associate Director: Kathy Mac Farlane; Administrative Secretary: Kim Bishop; Communications Co-ordinator: Milt Thomas; Alumni Program Manager (Saint John): Mary Duffley; Reunions and Special Events Co-ordinator: Barb MacMullin; Students and Young Alumni Co-ordinator: Annette Wetmore; Alumni Student Recruitment Co-ordinator: Shawna Pratt; Outreach Co-ordinator: Lillian Ryan, who recently retired after seven years of service; Vicki Lanteigne, currently on maternity leave; and former staff members, Athena Kreiner and Suzie Jones. You are a dedicated group of professionals who work effectively every day to implement the programs and services that we offer to our alumni. I know that you are committed to working with council to continually improve our programs and to strengthen our relationship with alumni . . . for that I thank you.

To UNB President Dr. John McLaughlin — thank you for your continued support of the Associated Alumni and our Alumni Council. By signing the Memorandum of Agreement this past fall we have a renewed commitment recognizing our association as a major constituent within the university community. The association continues to pursue its agenda in support of the university as laid out in our strategic plan, Energized and Involved.

And most of all I would like to thank all the alumni with whom I have had the pleasure of working and meeting during my travels as president. I feel honoured to have served as your president and assure you that it was with great pride that I attended outreach events, presented scholarships, honoured alumni with awards, joined in Celebration '04 and gave special gifts to graduating students as they walked across the stage and became alumni. I will treasure these memories!

The one common factor that I have found among all alumni, no matter what year you graduated or no matter where life has taken you, is the many fond memories of your days at UNB and your pride in being alumni.

Although my term as president will end, I look forward to continuing to be actively involved with the Associated Alumni and the university and I will always be “Proudly UNB”!

Homecoming 2005, a chance to catch up with your past

Maybe it's just a function of the fact I work at UNB, but I find myself running to the bookcase in the Alumni Office fairly often to look up someone in a yearbook. And usually it's just out of curiosity.

Generally, it happens something like this . . . I get an e-mail from someone asking for their alumni ID number, or I come across a name as I'm editing Hither and Yon for the magazine. Sometimes it's the name itself that triggers a ring of familiarity from my particular period at UNB, and sometimes it's just the year. Regardless, I end up thumbing through a yearbook to see if the person is indeed someone I remember from my undergraduate years. Often he or she is, and I wonder what's transpired in their life between then and now.

I met an awful lot of people during my four years here in the late '60s and early '70s. Some ended up as lifelong friends with whom I still stay in contact, while others were more casual acquaintances whose paths I'd occasionally cross in a classroom, over a card game or coffee at the SUB, or at a party. But as I remember it, they were all good company.

And that's why I hope I'll be seeing some of those people this summer at Homecoming 2005, so I can simply walk up to them and say “Hey, remember me, and the time we went to _____ and got _____ and then we _____?”

So, if you'd like to fill in some blanks of your own with people you may not have seen for a dog's age, Homecoming 2005 will be the perfect chance to do so. Think about it.

In the centre of this edition you'll find a ballot for our annual Alumni Council elections. It's your chance to be actively involved in your Associated Alumni, so please take a moment to consider the candidates and cast your vote. As we've done for the past two elections, an electronic ballot, which has proven highly successful, is available until May 31 at www.unb.ca/alumni/elections. Please vote — it'll only take a minute.

PROUD AND PROACTIVE...

UNB is as old as the province itself. It has a long, proud history of graduating those who have built New Brunswick. It continues that tradition today. Those of us involved with Proudly UNB are extremely proud to have graduated from the University of New Brunswick and we want to actively inform, motivate and involve those who feel the same way. Because when it comes down to it, UNB generates the energy as to where our province can go by the graduates who will take it there.

BUILDING AND PROVIDING SUPPORT...

Proudly UNB wants to create a dialogue for, and between, our alumni here and around the globe. This dialogue will speak our message to companies and governments, students enrolled and those yet to come, that UNB is crucial to the future of our province. ## The First Snow of Winter

By Fred Allen (BA'51)
Trafford Publishing
ISBN 1-55212-979-2

This is the story of Major Peter Marshall, Canada's most decorated hero of the Second World War, the disintegration of his family, and the devastating impact of a vicious early winter storm that caught the family as they returned to Fredericton following a fateful visit to his wife's family home in Quebec City. During the weekend, Peter returned from an annual regimental reunion in Montreal, where he learned that his Victoria Cross actually had been earned by his great friend and mentor Sharkey. He had also become aware of the full consequences of his wife's infidelity. All of this is witnessed by his son Robbie, who has idealized and idolized his father only to watch, now, as his family starts to come apart. The storm provides Peter with an opportunity to restore his image in the eyes of his son.

Rules for Life

By Darlene Ryan (Arsenault, BSc'80)
Orca Book Publishers
ISBN 1-55143-350-8

Isabelle (Izzy) Sullivan talks to her dad about everything. "My friends either think it's so cool or deeply weird, but realistically, who else am I going to talk to? My mother is dead. Unless I want to hand out three ninety-nine a minute to the Psychic Seers Network we're not going to be doing a lot of talking. And my big brother Jason isn't someone you talk to. He's usually someone you talk about." When Izzy's father tells her he's getting married, to a woman she barely knows, who — uh oh — is pregnant, Izzy knows the marriage will be a disaster. Good husbands "have practical cars, sensible hair, and they come home for supper. That's not my dad." The Bulletin of the Center for Children's Books calls Rules "a satisfyingly prickly family drama."

Medical Benefit and the Human Lottery: An Egalitarian Approach to Patient Selection

By Duff R. Waring (BA'78, MA'81, LLB'83)
Springer 2004
ISBN: 1-4020-2970-5

Bioethicists, moral philosophers and social policy analysts have long debated how we should decide who shall be saved with scarce, lifesaving resources when not all can be saved. It is often claimed that it is fairer to save younger persons and that age is an ethically relevant consideration in such tragic decisions. Medical benefit should be maximized and final selection should aim to minimize the contaminating influence of chance. These claims are challenged by Duff R. Waring in Medical Benefit and the Human Lottery, one of the few books that attempts a sustained defence of random patient selection. This book combines ethics and political philosophy in its novel and strict egalitarian approach to patient selection for transplantable organs. Waring addresses the question of whether we should choose between lives on the basis of fair chances or best outcomes. He argues that final selection criteria should be based on fair chances that equalize opportunity as opposed to best outcomes. His defence of "hardy" egalitarianism aims to show that random selection by lottery can affirm both a common humanity and the equal value of lives. Waring argues that we should give the principle of equal concern and respect a radical expression: above a noncomparative threshold of medical benefit, each candidate can have an equal claim to life.

The Fiddlehead turns 60

In 1945, Prof. Alfred Bailey founded The Fiddlehead, a UNB-based literary publication that has gained world-wide attention by publishing both known and upcoming writers. In this space, former editor Robert Gibbs looks back on The Fiddlehead's 60-year legacy.

BY ROBERT GIBBS

Editor of The Fiddlehead, 1970-73

It's another startling birthday for The Fiddlehead. Who, of those student-and-professor poets seated in someone's living room mulling over the suggestion that they put their best efforts into print, could have foreseen such longevity? Of that original company, the Bliss Carman Society in 1945, I know of only three still living: Frances (Firth) Gammon, Eleanor Belyea, and Elizabeth Brewster.

Last year, two of the pioneer editors died: Donald Gammon, the first, who commanded enough energy to see the dream actualized; and Fred Cogswell, who in 1952 turned the large-format mimeographed magazine into one more like its present size and scope.

That dream had haunted Dr. Alfred Bailey from his days as a student at UNB, when he wished for a revival of the Roberts-Carman poetry ferment and a magazine that would take its name from the Malecite symbol for an ever-respringing Spring.

Fred Cogswell's tenure of some 20 years, continuous, except for a sabbatical break when Allan Donaldson sat in, ended in 1967. It was characterized by generous inclusiveness. When Kent Thompson took over, he made changes: more room for fiction, drawings by local artists, and cash payments to contributors. He continued until 1970 (with a couple of short stints).

Subsequent editors, including me (1970 through '73), also made changes, though not enough to veer from the magazine's reason-for-being as a forum for beginning writers side-by-side with established ones. Such notables as Milton Acorn, Al Purdy, Margaret Atwood, Alden Nowlan, William Stafford, and John Metcalf made early appearances.

In 1975, Roger Ploude took up the banner and carried it till 1981. It was he who replaced the fern motif on covers with art photographs, a practice extended to other genres and continued to this day. Peter Thomas

Special celebration set for October

A 60th anniversary celebration for The Fiddlehead will take place on Oct. 19, 2005, at Old Government House in Fredericton. Commemorative T-shirts and posters will be available. For information, please contact Sabine Campbell (Phone: (506) 453-3501; e-mail: fiddlehd@unb.ca)

(1982-84) reaffirmed the magazine's regional roots by including an 'Out of Place' essay in each number and a bibliography annually. In these endeavours the editors drew upon members of the department of English along with others of different persuasions, some from STU and some from outside. The artists-in-residence have been particularly supportive.

A graduate student, Don Conway, occupied the chair in 1984; Michael Taylor from 1985 to 1990; Don McKay, 1991 to 1995; and Bill Gaston in 1996. The present incumbent, Ross Leckie, took his place atop the masthead in 1997. His right-hand, managing editor Sabine Campbell, had joined the staff in 1985. She is one of a series of four indispensable administrative officers; the others were Peggy Pitt, Betty Allardyce, and Norma Reid.

Creative writing programs and visiting writers, along with the magazine, have attracted many aspiring writers to UNB. A number of these who have served editorial apprenticeships have gone on to distinction in their work: Michael Brian Oliver, Yvonne Trainer, David West, Randy Maggs, Wayne Johnston, Matt Robinson, Sue Sinclair.

So the story of The Fiddlehead, entangled with that of UNB, and with the cultural history of this region and nation, has led on to wide recognition in the world of writers and readers and creative people.

2005 Grad Class plans new wheelchair ramp for Alumni Building

Since 1990, graduating students at UNB Fredericton have given something back to the university, and this year it's the Alumni Memorial Building that will see the benefits of their generosity.

"The tradition of class projects started with the Class of '90 Gates," said Kara Hachey, president of this year's graduating class. "Since then, graduating classes have bought library books, created scholarships, improved lighting, and made many important improvements to our campus. We wanted to keep that tradition alive."

This year's Grad Class project, Accessing UNB, will improve accessibility to the Alumni Memorial Building with a new wheelchair ramp at the front entrance.

"For many prospective students, their very first impressions of UNB Fredericton are formed at the entrance to this building as they begin their campus tour with SPARC," says Ms. Hachey.

In addition to the SPARC (Student Pride and Alumni Relations Committee) Office, the class project will also improve accessibility to the Alumni Office and two popular reception and meeting areas, the Alumni Lounge and the President's Tartan Room.

"Because this project is so important, the university has agreed to match every dollar we donate to a maximum of $5,500," said Ms. Hachey. "This will enable us to complete a wonderful project that might otherwise have been out of our financial reach."

While the wheelchair ramp is a project of the graduating class, donations are welcome from all students, faculty, staff, parents, and other friends of the university. For more information, visit www.unb.ca/graduation/encaenia/176/project.html.

RESEARCH

UNBSJ prof awarded $485,500 to study flounder aquaculture

Matthew Litvak, professor of biology and director of the Centre for Coastal Studies and Aquaculture at UNB Saint John, has been awarded a $458,500 research grant. Funded by the National Science and Engineering Research Council (NSERC), the Litvak lab will study the viability of winter flounder for N.B.'s aquaculture industry.

"These kinds of awards clearly demonstrate the high level of research that is going on right here in Saint John," said UNBSJ Vice-President Kathryn Hamer. "We are proud of the work that Dr. Litvak and his lab are doing."

Dr. Litvak's research is born from a desire to further diversify the lucrative aquaculture industry. One such species showing great potential for the industry is the winter flounder, a fish that carries good value and a natural ability to withstand low temperatures.

Dr. Litvak will act as the principal investigator for a team of scientists that includes Dr. Vanya Ewart, research officer at NRC's Institute of Marine Bioscience and adjunct professor Dalhousie University, Dr. Céline Audet, professor, Institut des sciences de la mer de Rimouski (ISMER), UQAR, and Dr. Yvan Lambert, research scientist, DFO Institut Maurice-Lamontagne, Mont-Joli, Qué. New Brunswick's Bay Shore Lobster along with two Quebec aquaculture associations have also been supportive of this work.

"We are trying to provide the aquaculture industry with new strains of fish, and a protocol to produce fast growing and cold tolerant strains of winter flounder for aquaculture production," said Dr. Litvak. "Success of this project could launch a new era in Canadian aquaculture by allowing its expansion across the entire east coast of Canada."

UNBF faculty awarded funding

Three new faculty members at UNB Fredericton have received nearly $300,000 in support of their research from the Canada Foundation for Innovation (CFI).

Chemist Sean McGrady of the faculty of science received $176,571, Felisa Chan of the faculty of forestry and environmental management was awarded $87,491, and Usha Kuruganti of the faculty of kinesiology received $28,433.

Dr. McGrady will establish a state-of-the-art lab to prepare, study and develop inorganic materials and catalysts, which he said have "improved the standard of living experienced in Canada and the developed world."

Dr. Chan's funding will enhance the wood composite research facilities at UNB's Wood Science and Technology Centre. She said this will "help to provide highly qualified personnel to meet the needs of research institutes and the wood products industry in Canada."

Dr. Kuruganti will use her award to purchase equipment for UNB's Human Performance Laboratory to assist with interlimb co-ordination assessments. She said she hopes to "develop methods to improve co-ordination and stability in aging populations."

UNB prof joins team helping tsunami victims

Chok Hiew is on a mission. The UNB Fredericton psychology professor left for Southeast Asia in mid-April as the Canadian part of a team of psychologists that will train volunteers to work with children and families traumatized by the Dec. 26, 2004, tsunami disaster.

Dr. Hiew joined colleagues from Thammasat University in Thailand and Tarumanagara University in Indonesia on a month-long trauma training mission.

“There is a shortage of mental health professionals in Thailand and Indonesia,” said Dr. Hiew. “We are going to train local volunteers from national psychological associations to help not only with the immediate trauma but also with the long-term healing that is required. We need to work with people who know the culture and who know what is needed.”

Dr. Hiew will split his time between Jakarta, Indonesia, and the coastal region of Thailand.

The goal of the mission, he said, is to teach volunteers how to recognize trauma in children and how to work with them to increase their chances of making a full recovery.

“We want to restore hope and normalcy to these children,” he said. “Many of them will grow up without parents or extended families and will have to make it on their own. This is a pretty overwhelming situation. The survivors could easily end up as permanently disabled psychological casualties who are completely dependent on society.”

Dr. Hiew says that although dealing with psychological issues and trauma is important to recovery, he also wants to ensure entire generations are not lost.

“This is not just a clinical problem, whole communities have been destroyed,” he said. “We want to rebuild the social fabric of the communities. We are really talking about healing the body, mind and spirit of whole communities.”

This is not the first time Dr. Hiew has travelled to disaster-stricken countries. In 1999, he was part of a response team that went to Kosovo, Yugoslavia, to train mental health professionals and teachers to help children traumatized by war.

“I’ve long had global interest in the rights of children, especially those endangered by war, sexual exploitation and poverty,” he said. “Not all children are fortunate enough to live in countries where their rights are protected.”

He has always had an interest in international psychology and the diverse cultures that are representative of Canada’s unique multicultural fabric. He has co-authored five books on Eastern health practices and regularly trains health-care providers and therapists in Eastern medicine and mind-body healing techniques.

“To me, a community is more than just my immediate location,” he said. “It’s the international community.” Dr. Hiew, who has been at UNB Fredericton since 1974, taught community health psychology and social psychology at UNBF. He says that although he officially retired this spring, he will never stop doing what he loves.

“I will probably take more trips and continue my outreach work,” he said. “I may also teach part-time. I want to pass on what I have learned to others who may benefit from my experiences.”

Chemistry prof, N.B. firm team up on hydrogen project

Finding an alternative to fossil fuels has been the focus of intense research since the 1970s.

Now, a breakthrough technology being developed by UNB and a small company called HSM Systems, Inc. may put an alternative within reach.

“Our goal is to produce a safe, compact storage system for hydrogen that is both lightweight and affordable,” explains Sean McGrady, a chemist at UNB in Fredericton.

While the storage system is being developed for existing hydrogen markets, such as the chemical industry, it may have applications that would affect consumers worldwide. One of these is hydrogen-powered transportation.

“One of the bottlenecks for bringing hydrogen into everyday use is the problem with storage,” says Chris Willson, senior vice-president of HSM Systems, Inc. “This problem prevents hydrogen from competing with gasoline as a fuel, even though it burns pollution free.”

Dr. McGrady explains that the average car can travel nearly 600 km on a tank of gas. “If you replace a standard gas tank with a container that holds the same volume of hydrogen gas, you would only get about 20 km per tank.

“The challenge is to find a better way to store hydrogen. The way to do this is to condense it into a compound — a solid — so you can use it when you want, in the amount you want.”

Using Dr. McGrady’s system, the same amount of hydrogen can be stored in a container the size of a mug.

How important is this technology? Once commercialized, it will have a direct impact on the major users of hydrogen by making it safer and cheaper to store and transport.

Mr. Willson believes that it may have an even greater impact by bringing hydrogen fuel cells closer to reality. As Dr. McGrady explained, a replacement for gasoline is badly needed.

“The realization is that oil is running out,” he said. “Depending on who you talk to, oil reserves will be depleted in 30 years or perhaps as few as 10.”

Novel with UNB connections tops in Canada Reads contest

This year's winner of the Canada Reads contest on CBC radio has two strong connections to UNB.

Firstly, Rockbound was authored by Frank Parker Day, who taught English at UNB in Fredericton from 1909 to 1912, and secondly, the 1989 and 2005 editions of the novel both feature an afterword by UNB's Gwen Davies.

"I am very excited about a Maritime novel winning this national contest," said Dr. Davies, associate vice-president (research), dean of graduate studies, and a professor of English at UNBF.

An expert on the literary history of the Maritimes, Dr. Davies was nationally recognized herself in November when she was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada.

"Frank Parker Day — whose father, the Rev. George Day, was from Saint John — was raised in Nova Scotia where the novel is set," explained Dr. Davies. "Day graduated from Mount Allison in 1903 and was a Rhodes Scholar from New Brunswick in 1905. After studying at Oxford and Berlin, he took his first teaching job at UNB."

The following excerpt from Dr. Day's The Autobiography of a Fisherman, published in 1927, recalls his early teaching days at UNB:

"I had spent eight years in universities studying language and literature. I was fitted for nothing else. In my first lecture, I told my students everything I knew and could not imagine how I could fill in the time during the rest of the year. I wonder if that is a common experience with young professors!"

Dr. Day was also a major in the N.B. Light Dragoons. After raising the Cape Breton Highlanders in the First World War and serving at Amiens — where he was promoted to colonel in the field — he taught at Carnegie Tech, Swarthmore, and, eventually, became president of Union College in Schenectady, N.Y.

Rockbound, his third book, was published by Doubleday New York in 1928. While reviewed favourably in Canada and the U.S., it was poorly received by the residents of Ironbound, N.S., the island upon which Rockbound is based.

Dr. Day returned to the Maritimes in 1933, and died in Yarmouth County, N.S., in 1950.

Announced as the Canada Reads contest winner on Feb. 25, Rockbound triumphed over Beautiful Losers by Leonard Cohen, Volkswagen Blues by Jacques Poulin, No Crystal Stair by Mairuth Sarsfield, and Oryx and Crake by Margaret Atwood.

"Rockbound evokes the power, terror and dramatic beauty of the Atlantic, and paints a portrait of back-breaking labour, cunning bitterness and family strife in the decade preceding the first Great War."

UNBSJ campus plan to guide growth

UNB Saint John has released the final draft of its campus plan following nearly two years of consultation and planning. Designed by Toronto architects Brook McIlroy, the plan gives direction for growth of the Tucker Park campus for the near-term (5-15 years) and the long-term (15 years and beyond).

"We have grown by leaps and bounds over the last 40 years and we have big ambitions for the next 40," said UNB Saint John Vice-President Kathryn Hamer. "We want to build a strong base at Tucker Park so that we are well-prepared to take advantage of other opportunities, whether they be here at home or at points around the globe."

Based on current enrolment and size, the plan calls for an estimated $90-million of development over the next 10 years. Ten new buildings are proposed over the next 15 years. An estimated additional $50-60 million of development will be required past the 10-year threshold should enrolment grow significantly.

The first building to be constructed under the new plan is the University Commons, a multi-use facility overlooking the Kennebecasis River. The Commons will provide a central meeting place for students, faculty and staff as well as easy access to a new, expanded library, bookstore and meeting facilities. The site will also be home to a number of cultural events and will be open to the public.

New construction will be funded through UNB Saint John's capital budget and a variety of fund-raising efforts.

It'll soon be official

Forging Our Futures public launch set for June 9;

Meighen Foundation donates $500K for health clinic

Forging Our Futures is having a celebration in June and you're invited. UNB's most important development campaign in its more-than-200-year history will be officially launched June 9.

The launch will be held simultaneously on both the Saint John and Fredericton campuses.

Both launch locations will be video-linked for the occasion. The launch will feature the campaign kick-off, more details about Forging Our Futures itself and a few surprise major gift announcements. The celebration is open to all alumni as well as the public.

More details will be made public in the campaign's newsletter, UNB Futures, and on the campaign website, www.unbfutures.ca.

In the meantime, the campaign celebrated a major donation to UNB Fredericton's Community Health Clinic in February. The clinic, one of the only university teaching and research health clinics in Canada serving the homeless, received a $500,000 donation from the T.R. Meighen Family Foundation. As part of the UNB Forging Our Futures campaign, the donation will ensure the university continues to be a leader in innovative education and research that benefits both students and the community.

"This generous donation by the T.R. Meighen Family Foundation to UNB's Forging Our Futures campaign will allow us to continue our pioneering research into the health issues surrounding the homeless and to give our students a unique hands-on learning opportunity in community health," said UNB President John McLaughlin.

The Community Health Clinic is an initiative of the UNB Fredericton faculty of nursing. The clinic is both a learning placement for students and a research centre in the areas of primary health care, health services delivery, and other health-related topics.

“We’re pleased to be the catalyst for the continued success of the Community Health Clinic’s inventive learning and research environment,” said Kelly Meighen, president of the T.R. Meighen Family Foundation.

“Innovative approaches to these and other issues make the university a leader across Canada. That’s why we’re investing in UNB.”

Since the clinic opened in December 2002, hundreds of patients have benefited from its services. In addition, more than 100 students from eight different UNB faculties and partner educational organizations have had clinical placements at the facility. Every year student placements at the Community Health Clinic provide approximately 6,000 hours, or 950 days, of combined education and service.

Established in April 1969, the T.R. Meighen Family Foundation is a private charitable organization that supports community-based activities in the fields of education, health, social welfare, and cultural and environmental conservation, mostly in New Brunswick. The foundation has funded a number of worthy initiatives at UNB in the past, including the Meighen Molson Professorship in Atlantic Salmon Research and the Centre for Conflict Studies.

Also, in March, Forging Our Futures named 15 students, faculty and staff as Campaign Ambassadors. From a variety of backgrounds, the ambassadors represent the best and brightest UNB has to offer. They include both undergraduate and graduate students, international students, leading faculty and respected staff.

They embody the reasons why Forging Our Futures is so important and illustrate how the campaign will benefit the entire university community. Look for the ambassadors at campaign events and meetings with donors like you.

Are you ready for some lobster?

The Maritime Lobster Boil . . . it's a long-time UNB alumni tradition that will be honoured again July 29 during Homecoming 2005. At right during Homecoming 200, Lynn Hruczkowski (Fraser, BA'82) seems absolutely delighted at the lobster being served up by Debbie Goguen of UNB's food services. Lynn and husband Tomasz Hruczkowski (BScEE'89) are among hundreds who have already registered for Homecoming 2005.

Homecoming, it's all about memories

Did you get your receipt?

To ensure all Homecoming attendees are properly registered, we ask you to keep in mind a couple of points.

If you register (or have registered) online, you should receive either an e-mail confirmation, or, if you have not included an e-mail address, a hard-copy confirmation and receipt. Your name should also appear on our online list of registrants if you have opted to be listed.

If you have sent in a hard-copy registration form, you should receive a receipt by mail.

Please contact the Alumni Office at hc2005@unb.ca, (506) 453-4847, if you have not received a confirmation message/receipt or if you have any questions about your registration.

How many of you have ever asked yourself the question we ask on the cover of this edition — ‘Whatever happened to . . . ?’

We suspect a lot. When you think back on your UNB days, whether it be five, 10, 25 or 50 years ago, mental images often spring to mind of people and events you may not have recalled for years. Those recollections have probably made most of us think of someone we had a close, or even casual, relationship with during our student days. And inevitably follows the thought “I wonder whatever happened to (him) (her) (them)?”

Well, there's no better way to satisfy that curiosity than by getting together with a raft of other UNBers at Homecoming 2005, July 28-31 on the Fredericton campus. If you don't know what happened to someone, there'll probably be someone else at Homecoming who DOES know.

But time is running out. If you haven't already registered, we urge you to do so as soon as possible. Consider these figures:

- Of the available seats for Thursday evening's Welcome Home Reception, about 25 per cent are spoken for;
- For the ever-popular Lobster Boil on Friday followed by the Pub Under the Stars, we're also approaching about 25 per cent capacity;
- Saturday's Golden Grad Dinner is already at a third of its capacity;
- And while there are still a good number of seats available for Saturday evening's Natalie MacMaster concert, the premiere seats on both the floor and in the stands are being snapped up quickly.

It's obvious to us many more of you are planning to attend than have registered to date. (For a list of those who HAVE registered, click on our ‘See Who's

A note on seating

As we did for Homecoming 2000, seating for Friday's Lobster Boil will be divided between two venues — the Big Tent on Chapman Field, and the adjacent Aitken University Centre (AUC).

Current plans call for members of the Class of 1960 and earlier to be seated in the AUC, with the remainder directed to the Big Tent.

However, we recognize that some members of the Class of 1960 or earlier may want to sit with friends or family members from later classes in the Big Tent. If such is the case, please indicate your wishes in the 'Special Requests' section of the online or hard-copy registration form.

Seating for the Golden Grad dinner will be organized by class/year.

Seating for the Natalie MacMaster concert will be assigned on a first-come, first-served basis. Again, requests to be seated with certain other guests should be registered in the 'Special Requests' section of the registration form.

If you have already registered and wish to make a special seating request, please send an e-mail to hc2005@unb.ca.

Homecoming 2005 refund policy

The $10 registration fee is non-refundable.

Refunds will be issued for individual Homecoming events for cancellations on or before June 30, 2005.

For cancellations after June 30, 2005, refunds for individual Homecoming events will be provided only if there is a waiting list for that particular event.

All refunds will be in the form of a cheque and may take 4-6 weeks to process.

Final call for 'small group' reunion participants

Below and at the top of the facing page is a list of the small groups that are being organized for Homecoming 2005. If one of them is yours and you'd like to get in on the action, contact us for further information. Or take the initiative and become a leader for another small group. The Alumni Office can help. For further info, contact Barb MacMullin, (506) 447-3371 or e-mail reunions@unb.ca, and keep an eye on our website for updates.

Billet-A-Buddy, invite someone to stay with you

As we did with Homecoming 2000, we're encouraging alumni in the Fredericton area to take the initiative to get friends and classmates 'home' for Homecoming 2005. Call a friend — or two, or three or eight — from your UNB days and offer to put him/her/them up during the event. All they need is an invitation!

Wanted: Volunteers in Fredericton

The Homecoming 2005 committee will be in constant need of volunteers up to and including the event itself.

Last time around, in 2000, more than 250 people stepped up to help us with everything from event set-ups to driving shuttle vans, to organizing the small group reunions. Their assistance was key to the success of the event.

If you are in the Fredericton area and willing and able to offer your services in any capacity whatsoever, we'd love to hear from you. We can make use of talents you may not even realize you have!

For further information, please contact us at Tel: (506) 453-4847; Fax: (506) 453-4616; E-mail: alumni@unb.ca.

Ian Allen (BA'97, MEd'98) of Fredericton is the program director, distance education and off-campus services, at the College of Extended Learning, University of New Brunswick. Being both an alumnus and an employee of UNB, Ian realizes the importance of a strong Alumni Council and the role it plays on the university campus and in the community at large. Ian is involved in several non-profit and community organizations, including Ducks Unlimited, and feels that his service to the Alumni Council would only further the great reputation that UNB has established. It is with great pride that he offers his name to serve on the Alumni Council.

Renée Fleming (BScF'00) of Calgary, Alta., is a volunteer co-ordinator for approximately 600 volunteers at the Calgary Zoo. While attending UNB, she was a member of SPARC (Student Pride and Alumni Relations Committee), serving as president her final year. Renée was also active in the Safewalk program and House Orientation. Renée has become an active alumna by being an executive at large for the Calgary Outreach (Chapter), and has attended high school recruitment fairs on behalf of UNB. Renée looks forward to bringing her unique perspective to the Alumni Council, and furthering the Associated Alumni's strategic plan.

Yves Goudreau (BBA'86) of Dundee, N.B., is director of diagnostic services for the Acadie-Bathurst Health Authority and a paramedic with the Campbellton Regional Ambulance. While attending UNB, Yves was faculty representative on the SRC, participated on several senate committees, and served as a member of the orientation and graduating committees. Yves, who was a resident of Lady Beaverbrook Residence, was active on many committees of this residence. Yves realizes the important role alumni have in promoting UNB, and would like an opportunity to be part of this process as a member of Alumni Council.

Craig S. Haynes (BA'94-SJ), Ottawa. Who am I? A former SRC President (SJ's Student Union) and Senate member. A lawyer and past board member of the United Way and Chamber of Commerce in Yellowknife. Now, the federal health minister's adviser on Atlantic Canada issues. Why am I running? I have been hearing from alumni about what council does well and what it can do better. I want council's strategic plan process to continue. I believe UNB matters and want to promote the school that gave me so many memories. Want to know more about why I want to represent you on council? Ask me at craighaynes@hotmail.com.

Anne Higgins (BEd'92, MEd'96) is director of the professional development division at UNB's College of Extended Learning. Throughout New Brunswick and beyond, Anne works closely with professionals, who are graduates of UNB, in their quest for continuing education and professional development. These networks can provide significant linkages for increasing alumni strength in our home province. In addition, Anne believes that as a member of Alumni Council she would have the opportunity to contribute back to UNB for the generous scholarships and support she and her children have benefited from over the years.

Barry Ogden (BA-SJ'81, MEd'03) of Saint John, N.B., has taught school for 23 years. He has been on the executive of soccer, hockey, football and rugby associations, and still coaches. He is president of the Marco Polo Project, chief organizer of the Marigold Project, and has organized food bank drives for 20 years. Among the many community service and teaching awards he has received are the Queen's Gold Medal, the N.B. Citizen Award, and the City of Saint John Environmental and Recreational Awards. Barry believes UNB has a very important role to play in the growth of N.B. and that it must help foster changes in the community.

ASSOCIATION ACTIVITIES

Thanks to all those who participated in our Alumni Survey

Late last fall and early into the winter, the Associated Alumni conducted a membership survey and the response rate was incredible!

Out of a membership of approximately 57,000, we received replies from more than 6,000 of you. Most of those were received through our online survey form, and the association has garnered a wealth of information about your thoughts on the association and the services we provide, as well as on your student experience. Those results now are being analyzed by a working group of Alumni Council and will be used to guide our future activities under our strategic plan, Energized and Involved.

The survey asked a wide range of questions, from your thoughts on this publication (85.8 per cent said they read the Alumni News, and 93.45 per cent rated it as excellent or good), to the best way for the Associated Alumni to communicate with you (77.1 per cent said e-mail, with conventional mail coming second at 16.96 per cent).

Our sincere thanks to the thousands of you who took the time to participate in our Alumni Survey, and we'll have more to tell you about the results in the coming months.

Outreach Program gives you a chance to get involved!

Victoria alumnus recalls Prof. Blinky Stephens

Jim Lunam (BSc'35) of Victoria and his daughter Ann Brenton leaf through A Pictorial History of the University of New Brunswick during an alumni reception in Victoria on Feb. 16. Dr. Lunam recalled a story from his student days about mechanical engineering Prof. John (Blinky) Stephens, who taught at UNB from 1908 to 1945. "Blinky used to dress very casually, even when teaching," Dr. Lunam said. "One summer while poking around the engineering building, some American tourists dropped in. They wanted to have a tour of the building and assumed that Blinky was the janitor. They must have thought their guide, the janitor, to be extremely well informed and knowledgeable and as the tour ended, they gave Blinky 50 cents, which he pocketed tout de suite."

Summit Series '72

The Aitken University Centre (AUC) has been transformed into a Soviet hockey arena for a documentary being filmed at UNB Fredericton on the 1972 hockey battle between Canada and the Soviet Union. And prospective actors were flocking to the AUC in February.

"Honestly, we've had so many people tell us they'd do anything to get a role in the production," said Donna Rae Gibbs, New Brunswick-based casting director. "We've had guys who said they'd take their teeth out just to play a certain character. The response has been unbelievable."

Moncton-based Dream Street Pictures Inc. and Summit Films of Halifax are collaborating to bring the epic Summit Series to life in a made-for-television production. Filming began in mid-March and was to go through the spring.

When the production crew announced its casting call in early February, the AUC was overflowing with hockey players of all skill levels showcasing their talents in front of the cameras and production staff.

The production crew — which includes Barrie Dunn and Michael Volpe of the Trailer Park Boys television series — weren't necessarily seeking the best players. They were more interested in finding players whose skating style resembled players from 1972.

Or they may have been looking for people who resembled members of either the Canadian or Soviet teams. Numerous hopefuls showed up with long sideburns or drooping mustaches to reflect the era.

Hundreds of people turned out for the on-ice auditions, including Gord Downey, the lead singer of the Canadian band The Tragically Hip. He was hoping to land the role of Canadian goaltender Ken Dryden. (Someone else got the part.)

Ms. Gibbs said she wasn't surprised by the enthusiastic response to the casting call. "As soon as I heard about the project and the subject matter of the film, I knew there would be a giant response. The series was a huge and proud moment in Canadian history."

It's certainly been a different experience for UNB Fredericton and staff, faculty and students.

"This has been an excellent opportunity for the University of New Brunswick and the Aitken Centre to showcase one of our premier facilities," said David Morell, events and marketing co-ordinator for the AUC and Varsity

Reds athletics. "It's been an exciting opportunity for people on campus to get a look at an actual movie production. Perhaps they'll be cast as extras or get a chance to play a role somehow in the movie. That's quite an opportunity, especially to be involved in something as memorable as that series."

The AUC will be used as the arena in Moscow and it will also double as one of the Canadian arenas from 1972.

"The set crew is doing a lot of work around the arena trying to make it dull looking with grey paint for the scenes that took place at the Moscow arena," said Mr. Morell. "They want it to look as much like the Soviet dressing rooms and some other parts of the arena are being painted and altered for effect."

The challenge of recreating history is not an easy one and Mr. Morell said the entire project will take a big effort from UNB Fredericton, the production crew and participants.

"This is all brand new for the university and it's been, at times, a major adjustment for us," he said. "We're all co-operating and keeping the ice in until early May, which is around a month longer than usual. In the end, it's a great opportunity and experience for UNB and its people. What better way than to recreate what was truly a memorable experience for many of us?"

The movie will eventually be shown on the CBC. Production staff have indicated they want to convey the emotion and desperation of the 1972 series, an eight-game package that many Canadian hockey experts had predicted would be a sweep for Canada and its NHL stars.

Team Canada captured the series with a 6-5 win in the deciding game when Paul Henderson scored his famous goal with 34 seconds to play.

Some season's highlights for the Seawolves, V-Reds

The UNBSJ Seawolves captured two Atlantic Colleges Athletics Association (ACAA) titles this past season, one of them a first-ever.

The Seawolves women's basketball team captured its first conference championship banner since it began competing in the league in 1993 with a 63-51 win over the St. Thomas Tommies. The team then went on to represent the region at the Canadian Colleges Athletic Association (CCAA) national championships in Calgary, Alta. Against some very tough competition, the Seawolves finished eighth at the nationals.

For Jacqueline Kennedy, the Seawolves captain who was playing in her final year, the trip to the nationals was a highlight of an outstanding year. She became the all-time female SJ career points leader with 1,496, was named the ACAA female MVP, named to the ACAA first all-conference team, was the ACAA tournament all-star, and, to cap it all off, at the nationals was named to the CCAA All-Canadian women's basketball team.

The other ACAA title garnered by a Seawolves team went to the men's volleyball players, who captured their 2005 banner with a 3-1 win over STU in the conference final. The team won its last regional title during the 1994-95 season. Seawolves middle Derek McRae was named ACAA MVP.

The Seawolves also went on to the CCAA nationals, hosted in Fredericton by STU, where they finished seventh.

with some excellent results overall and two top-place finishes.

In swimming, Carla Geurts-Cole took gold medals in the 400- and 800-metre freestyle and a silver medal in the 200-m freestyle. Swimmer Dan Monid brought home gold in the 50-m freestyle, and a silver in the 100-m freestyle.

The two swimmers, along with soccer players John Fish and Adam Pischuttta, were awarded CIS All-Canadian status.

And in a first for a men's soccer team member at UNB, Mr. Fish was named the CIS Rookie of the Year.
