Fredericton

EXCLUSIVE TO THE FREDERICTON CAMPUS

A PROVEN WAY TO LEARN ENGLISH

THE ELP EXPERIENCE

The University of New Brunswick's English Language Programme (ELP) has been helping non-English speakers learn the language since 1950. The Programme has built a solid reputation and is the first choice of those who are serious about learning the English language.

ELP is designed so that you immediately begin to function in an English setting. The holistic "live and learn" methodology is quick and intensive and makes for an experience that is lively and energetic. You learn as you take part in classroom, cultural, and day-to-day activities. In all programs and formats, the language of instruction is English and students are expected to sign a Commitment Contract to function in English for the duration of the Programme.

OUR PARTICIPANTS

Clients of all ages and cultural backgrounds help to provide an exciting multinational learning environment. Each year, the Programme attracts learners from over twenty countries around the world. ELP serves business people, professionals, retirees and students locally, provincially, nationally and internationally.

Client listings include provincial and federal governments, major industries and international corporations, global educational agencies and institutions, the small business community, service agencies, and entrepreneurial endeavours.

Pirkko Otra-aho, Finland

"After two weeks in Fredericton I noticed that I was dreaming and 'thinking' in English instead of translating. That's why I call it 'learning' English, not just studying."

OUR STAFF AND INSTRUCTORS

ELP instructors are recognized nationally and internationally for their expertise in different areas of curriculum development. They are supportive, caring, and passionate about their teaching. Trained in the ELP philosophy and methodology, they are sensitive to the unique needs of individuals trying to learn and succeed in a new environment.

They have experience in communicating with people at all levels of English proficiency. Collectively they have lived or taught in various countries such as Brazil, China, France, Mexico and South Korea and so understand firsthand what it is like to learn a new language or experience a new culture.

Pascal Pelchat, Quebec, Canada

"I felt like a part of a family and not like a number on the list. The quality of the teachers and their knowledge of English allow students to improve at their own pace effectively."
