FACULTY OF LAW

TENURE-TRACK ASSISTANT OR ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR

OR

TENURE-TRACK ASSISTANT OR ASSOCIATE TEACHING PROFESSOR

Closing Date: Review of applications is expected to begin by March 13, 2026 and continue until the positions are filled.

The Faculty of Law invites applications for up to two (2) tenure-track appointments in either the Professor or Teaching Professor streams at either the Assistant or Associate levels, with a start date of July 1, 2026 or such other date as may be negotiated with the successful candidates. These positions are subject to final budgetary approval.

The salary range and fringe benefits for this position are defined in the Association of University of New Brunswick Teachers (AUNBT) 2022 - 2025 Collective Agreement sections 35 and 36B.

These positions are part of the Faculty of Law's innovative Strategic Plan, which aims to enhance UNB Law's core curriculum, support a new graduate program, boost its research profile, and develop a range of experiential learning opportunities. To achieve this plan, the Faculty is hiring more professors, modernizing its facilities, and recommitting to its mission of preparing students for the legal profession. In pursuing these objectives, the Faculty will emphasize reconciliation, equity, diversity, and inclusion. Accordingly, the Faculty of Law values having professors from diverse backgrounds and perspectives.

At least one of the positions will fill a teaching need in the first-year Criminal Law course, which is six (6) credits. In addition to Criminal Law, the successful candidate will teach another six (6) credits of upper-year compulsory or elective courses in their field. For Professors, a full course load in the Faculty of Law is 12 credits (typically, two three-credit courses per term). For Teaching Professors, a full course load in the Faculty of Law is 15 or 18 credits.

In addition to Criminal Law, the Faculty is interested in candidates capable of teaching courses in quasi-criminal and regulatory law subjects (e.g. Environmental Law, Natural Resources Law, Securities Regulation, Immigration Law), practice and procedure (e.g. Criminal Procedure, Civil Procedure, Dispute Resolution), workplace law, statutory interpretation, and business law (e.g. Corporate Finance and Maritime Law). The Faculty welcomes applications from candidates with research agendas that broadly complement these areas of law.

Candidates for appointment as Assistant or Associate Professor must have earned a doctorate in law or a related discipline, or be a doctoral candidate nearing completion in their program of study. Consideration may be given to candidates who do not have a doctorate, but who show an equivalent level of qualification through a combination of significant professional experience and scholarly activity.

Candidates for appointment as Assistant or Associate Teaching Professor must have a J.D. degree as well as significant professional experience in the Faculty's areas of teaching need.

Founded in 1892, UNB Law is a collegial community with a deep commitment to its 270 students. Faculty members contribute to, and are committed to, sustaining our core curriculum, which includes compulsory courses in all three years. Our offices, teaching facilities, and the Gerard V. La Forest Law Library are located together in an attractive setting on UNB's Fredericton campus, above the Saint John/St. Jean (Wolastoq) River, in the capital city of New Brunswick. Faculty and students support a variety of causes and events that enhance the civic life of the school and community. We are home to the student-produced annual, UNB Law Journal/Revue de droit de l'UNB, and we offer many opportunities for collaboration both inside and outside the University.

Review of applications is expected to begin by March 13, 2026 and continue until the positions are filled. Please submit a curriculum vitae, transcripts of university study, brief statements of research and teaching interests, and the names, postal and email addresses, and telephone numbers of three referees to:

Michael Marin, K.C., Dean of Law
Attention: Tina Madore, Assistant to the Dean
Faculty of Law, University of New Brunswick
