Erasure Is Violence: Addressing The Gaps in New Brunswick School-Based Sex Education Through Cellphilms

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 4th, 2020 AT 12 PM - 1 PM

How is erasure of queer sex education an act of violence? Join us on November 4th where Dr. Casey Burkholder and Megan Hill (St. Thomas University) will describe the ways in which the erasure of 2SLGBTQIA+ centered sexual health acts as a form of violence.

In looking at a community-based research collaboration between AIDS-NB, Imprint Youth, and the Fredericton Feminist Film Collective (SeQuYN), Burkholder and Hill will highlight the opportunities and challenges of creating a website of resources that address the erasure of 2SLGBTQIA+ identities and sexual health from New Brunswick's school-based sex education curricula.

Domestic Violence: It's Your Business with Silke Brabander

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 18th, 2020 AT 12 PM - 1 PM

Are you a Dean, Director, Department Chair, Manager or Supervisor? Then this workshop is FOR YOU! Do you think of domestic violence as a workplace issue? If not, think again! Domestic or intimate partner violence costs employers roughly $890 MILLION per year in Canada ($20 million in New Brunswick). To add to that, 1 in 3 workers have experienced domestic violence, and more than 80% of them say their work performance was negatively affected.

Join us on November 18, 2020 from 12-1 pm to hear Silke Brabander, Chair of the MMFC's Domestic/Intimate Partner Violence (DIPV) in the Workplace Committee, provide an introduction to a newly available workplace toolkit. She will give an overview of the impacts of DIPV, of employer requirements and legal obligations, as well as information on how workplaces can obtain more in-depth training.

Une culture de consentement dans nos écoles :

Où en sommes-nous en 2020 ?

MARDI 24 NOVEMBRE 2020 à 12h - 13h

Êtes-vous une personne qui œuvre dans le domaine de l'éducation ? Un parent ou tuteur ? Une personne intéressée à instaurer une culture de consentement dans nos écoles ? Croyez-vous qu'il soit urgent de développer une culture de consentement dans nos écoles afin de mettre fin à la violence sexuelle dans les relations ? Alors cette présentation est POUR VOUS! Pour vous éclairer à ce sujet, voici quelques faits: Le Nouveau-Brunswick est la province canadienne où les jeunes sont les plus à risque de vivre des contacts sexuels non désirés (Ministère de la sécurité publique du Nouveau-Brunswick, 2016) et ajouter à ce fait, un sondage mené auprès des jeunes de la 6e à la 12e année portant sur le mieux-être des élèves au Nouveau-Brunswick révèle que 15,7% de ceux-ci ont rapporté avoir subi de la violence dans leurs fréquentations et ce, au cours de la dernière année (Conseil de la santé du Nouveau-Brunswick, 2016).

Rejoignez-nous le 24 novembre de 12 à 13 heures pour entendre Lyne Chantal Boudreau, Ph. D. professeure en éducation à l'Université de Moncton Elle donnera de la réalité du milieu scolaire sur toute la question du consentement dans le curriculum scolaire et proposera plusieurs pistes d'actions possible pour développer dans nos écoles des programmes d'éducation et de prévention holistiques axés sur les besoins des élèves.

Gender and Intimate Partner Violence Treatment Programs:

Are Specialized Processes in Canada Effective?

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 2020 AT 12 PM - 1 PM

Intimate partner violence (IPV) has gained recognition as a serious criminal offense through mandatory and pro-arrest charging policies, the development of the specialized domestic violence courts, and expansion of the use of community-based treatment programs in efforts to reduce the severity and prevalence of this societal issue. While such measures have resulted in the increased arrest of both men and women, researchers debate whether violence is perpetrated equally and therefore should they be treated equally?

Join us on November 26, 2020 from 12-1pm to hear Mary Aspinall, PhD Candidate in Sociology at UNB, provide an overview of the various Intimate Partner Violence treatment programs circulating throughout Canada. She will also discuss her ongoing dissertation research as to whether or not the programs currently in use are gendered and why this may be an important question for women who are mandated to attend.
