

TRAIT Classification Activity

Use the following code to classify characteristics: I for ideas, O for organization, V for voice, WC for word choice, F for sentence fluency and C for conventions.

Sentences vary in length and structure.
Punctuation and use of capital letters are reviewed.
Provides relevant and interesting details
Attempts to share passion for the subject with the reader
There is correct spelling, especially of frequently-used words.
Textual structure is suitable for writing purpose and intended audience.
Words create images in the reader's head.
The introduction or initial situation captures the reader's attention.
Demonstrates a passion for the subject
Sentences are connected.
There is correct use of verbal modes and tenses.
The main idea is easily recognizable.
The reader can hear the writer's voice in the text (e.g., joy, sadness).
Includes transitions

Words carefully chosen to help the reader to see, hear, smell, taste and smell events and actions.
Expresses enthusiasm
The text flows; it has a rhythm.
Ideas are logically and effectively presented.
Correct use of adjectives
Text is easy to read.
Uses lively verbs and nouns and evocative adjectives and adverbs
Demonstrates knowledge of the subject
Obvious that text has been reread several times and corrected	